

MANY OFFENDERS IN COURT

A Number of Cases Were Heard by Judge Enright This Morning

A variety of cases, some of which were long drawn out owing to the questions asked by counsel, were heard by Judge Enright in police court this morning. The number of arrests for drunkenness was rather large, but inasmuch as there were many first offenders, releases were made by the probation officer.

Circumstances Alter Cases

Sergio Correira was charged with drunkenness and assault, and battery on Martin McNally, a 14 year old boy, living at 7 North street. The assault took place two weeks ago yesterday and when the defendant made his first appearance in court he was released on his personal recognizance, but he failed to appear in court on the date set for the trial. A capias was issued and Patrolman James P. Garrity arrested the man at the corner of Central and North streets Saturday.

Martin McNally was the first witness called and he testified that on the 24th of August he was assaulted by the defendant, stating that the latter struck him on the nose. He admitted that after the assault he picked up a stone and threw it at him and later threw a milk bottle at him.

Patrolman James P. Garrity informed the court that as a result of information given him he arrested the defendant on a capias and further stated that the man was drunk at the time he was arrested.

Correira denied that he was drunk and when asked why he did not put in an appearance on the day he was supposed to come into court he said that he was afraid that he would be "soaked."

During the course of the trial it was brought out that the defendant was one of the agitators in the strike in the cotton mills during the early part of this year, and Deputy Downey who conducted the case for the government showed that the defendant had been before the court on previous occasions for various offenses.

Mr. Correira testified that her husband was a good man but admitted that she had to work every day despite the fact that she has several children and also has to care for the government. In a whispered conversation to the court she explained certain things which caused the judge to be lenient with the defendant.

In the case of drunkenness Correira was sentenced to two months in jail and the sentence was suspended for six months. For drunkenness a suspended sentence of two months was imposed.

Neglected His Wife

John W. Canavan was charged with neglecting his wife, Edna W. After testimony had been offered, Judge Enright decided to place the man on probation on condition that he would turn his pay over to the probation officer each week.

Disturbing the Peace

John Andrews and Peter Svobodan were charged with disturbing the peace. They were arrested in Market street Saturday afternoon by Patrolman George Abbott. The affair was a hectic encounter which attracted a large crowd. A finding of guilty was made, and the defendants were fined $10 each.

Assault and Battery

Thomas Kavaney, charged with assault and battery, was found guilty and placed on probation.

Continued Case

The case of Gilbert Miron, charged with breaking and entering and attempt to commit larceny in the house of Lawrence Welch at 22 Lee street, which was called Saturday morning, was postponed today and several witnesses were heard but at the request of Lawyer James Stuart Murphy, counsel for the defense, the case was again continued until tomorrow morning.

Drunken Offenders

Isadore Donbraskie, charged with being drunk, entered a plea of not guilty, but after Patrolman Cyle and John H. Clark offered testimony relative to the man's condition, the defendant with the peculiar name was fined $6.

John Meade made a disturbance while under the influence of liquor and just for that he was assessed $10.

Arthur Dubois was placed in the hands of the probation officer for six months.

George Marquette, Mary Grady, Mary J. Gallant, Annie Boyle, Everett Tremble and Joseph Gagnon were fined $5 each.

Thomas P. Mahoney was given a free pass to the state farm.

Christopher Tranton, John W. Donovan, George Irving and William E. Butler were arrested yesterday for drunkenness and after pleading guilty each man was fined $6.

Several men were in for the first time and they were fined $2 each, while a number of simple offenders were released by the probation officer.

NOTES FROM THE DEPOT

Heavy Travel Reported on All Trains

Several of the trains coming into this city were late this morning, but as during the past the lateness was due to the heavy traveling. Never before in the history of the road has the passenger service been so good. During the entire spring and summer seasons, the trains were literally packed with people, going to and coming from their vacations. Especially heavy has been the riding on the New York train and today it was crowded notwithstanding the fact that it carried several extra cars.

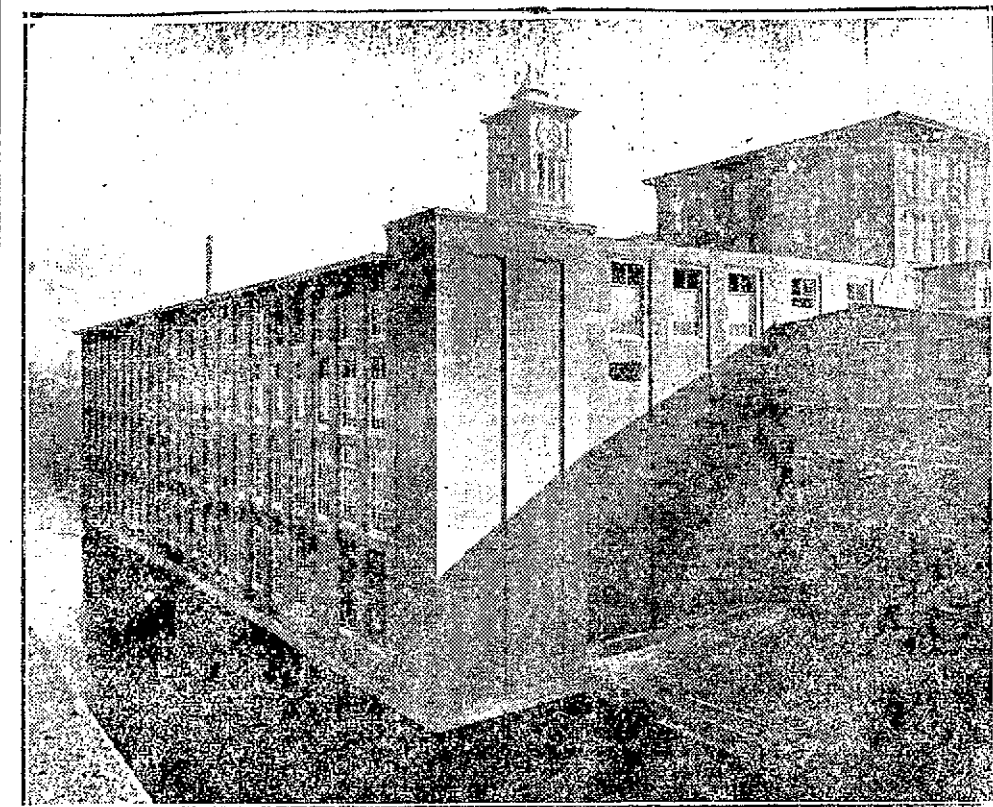

The baggage too has been very great this season, and the men in that department at the station have worked hard all summer. They are a competent crew and their work has been complicated many times by visitors to Lowell.

The depot men expect that the winter will include a number of changes, but owing to the heavy traveling on some of the trains which were put on temporarily the men expect that these will be continued after the schedule is published.

Freighter Damaged

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—The freighter Bristol City of the Bristol line came into port today from St. Vincent with a shattered foretopmast, as a result of an electrical storm at sea on Tuesday last. A belt of lightning struck the mast, splitting it down some distance and making the whole ship tremble. The chief engineer was stunned and thrown five feet and the mate was rendered unconscious. Neither was seriously hurt, although the mate was laid up in bed for two days.

The New Hamilton Mill Is One Of the Biggest in the City

NEW HAMILTON MILL

The accompanying picture of the building is 135 feet wide and 275 feet long, four stories with basement. The third floor is just being started up and as yet no machinery has been installed on the fourth floor. Besides the old looms that were moved from number three mill, the mill now occupied by the ribbon making industry, the Morton mills, coming here from Paterson, N. J., about 200 new looms have been installed and the end is not yet. Old style looms are being supplanted by new and modern looms and the old looms are broken up and sold for old junk as was shown in a picture used by The Sun, on Saturday.

THE WATER DEPARTMENT

Will Take Care of All Water Meters

IN ANOTHER YEAR CITY MAY OWN ITS OWN METERS

New Reservoir Will Not Be Completed Before Middle of October—Big Saving in Fire Department Expenses

The water department is now taking care of all water meters in the city and is doing all the repairing. Last year Commissioner Barrett allowed that Lowell's water rate was too high, but since his control of the water department he has not been able or at least has not deemed it advisable to lower the water rates. He has done considerable toward improving the water system and now he is going to the assistance of the man who has a meter and pays the cost of maintenance. This will deprive the water department of about $3000 a year and Mr. Barrett believes that conditions warrant it.

"He thinks that the city should own all its meters just as the gas company owns its meters. Talking with reporters today, Mr. Barrett said: 'I believe that the city should own its water meters just as it owns its pipes in the street and perhaps we will be able to get to that in another year.' The water department, the first of September, took over the care of all water meters in the city and the only responsibility that now rests with the owners of meters is that they shall protect them from freezing. The city cannot afford to repair frozen meters and it is up to the owners of meters to keep their cellar in such condition as to protect the meters from freezing. About 50 per cent. of the water used in this city is metered and the department derives its revenue from meter owners. In view of this fact it might be said that the department is lightening the burden of the meter owner. The water department, of course, will not put in new meters or replace the old ones free of charge."

The New Reservoir

When the question of a new reservoir in Concordville was first taken up it was thought that it would be in operation before the first of the present month. The chances are, however, that the reservoir will not be in operation before the middle of October and perhaps the first of November. About one-quarter of the concrete roof has been laid, and Commissioner Barrett expects that the job will be completed by Oct.

SUPERIOR COURT OPENED TODAY

A Number of Offenders Were Arraigned—Judge Chase Presided at the Session

Monotony was the most prominent feature of this morning's session of the superior court in the criminal court room, there being a number of uninteresting cases which Judge Chase disposed of with customary despatch. Several of those selected for the jury presented their excuses and applied for release from jury duty and one or two were excused.

Joseph Castellucci, who was charged with stealing two horses, a carriage and harness from a Mr. Thompson of Somerville on one count, and of receiving them as stolen property on a second count, pleaded not guilty to both. He was bound over for his appearance in the sum of $800.

Sent to Prison

Thomas Morrison, who on Friday pleaded guilty to an indictment charging him with breaking and entering the house of William Hall and stealing a quantity of silverware, was brought before the court this morning for sentence. The prisoner had previously stated in a manner somewhat philosophic that he worked when he could get work to do, but when that was impossible, he must steal. He stated that he has been out of prison since fourteen years ago this month when he was released from State prison after serving a term there for a similar offense.

The man has twice been sent to the Massachusetts State prison and once in Rhode Island, on each occasion giving a different name. He gave his age as 32 years. Judge Chase sentenced him to confinement and hard labor in the state prison for a term not more than five years, nor less than three.

Pleaded Guilty

Wilbur Gibson, who comes from Ayer, changed his plea from not guilty to guilty on a charge of larceny of an automobile from Richard O'Connell, was continued until next November.

The case of Vernon A. Adams, who was charged with having stolen an automobile from Richard O'Connell, was continued until next November.

Peculiar Record

A peculiar record was brought to light in the case of Ambrose J. Arthur of Billerica, who was arraigned on a charge of deserting his wife. On a former occasion he was arrested after an attempt to break into a house, been on probation and has served time for various offenses. Some time ago when he was apprehended for non-support, a fashionably dressed young woman, who said she was a social worker, appeared in his behalf and entered a plea for him. He was sentenced to four months in the house of correction in a lower court and took an appeal from this. He had already served nearly two months. Today he was sentenced to serve six months in the house of correction at Cambridge, which is considerably more than would have fallen to his lot had he been satisfied with the decision of the lower court.

Changed Their Pleas

William J. Ryan and J. J. Healey, who at the session of the grand jury on Friday last pleaded not guilty to a charge of assault with intent to rob, today changed their pleas and filed pleas of guilty of assault and battery. Both were sentenced to spend six months in the house of correction.

A man was arraigned on an indictment charging him with carnal abuse, to which he had pleaded not guilty on Friday. It was thought that he is deranged and he was held for examination as to his sanity.

Patrick Keady pleaded guilty to a charge of vagrancy and was sent to the state farm at Bridgewater.

Drunken Offenders

James L. Banfield, who has been arrested four times and who has been several times released, appeared from a sentence of four months imposed by the police court. His case was continued and he was placed under surety of $100. Thomas Roddy was sent to the reformatory with the understanding that he would be transferred to the industrial school at Shirley as soon as there is a vacancy at that place. He was charged with drunkenness and general disorder. George H. or George E. Douglas, with three counts of drunkenness against him, was held in $100 bail for the first and the other two were filed. The session adjourned at 12.52 and was resumed at 2 o'clock.

Will Savings Bank Interest Ever Bring You Financial Independence?

Look that question squarely in the face, then take a peep at your bank book.

If you deposited $100 in the savings bank ten years ago, and kept it there steadily you will find yourself richer by $18.55.

If you were wiser and put the money in a 5 per cent. real estate mortgage your money has earned $60.

How much has some one you know made by investing the same amount in a good stock?

One Thousand Dollars invested in Lucile stock a few years ago is returning $3,000 per year in dividends and the shares can now be sold for $65,000.

One Thousand Dollars invested in the stock of the Fullerton Oil company yields $5,000 in dividends and the stock can now be sold for $55,800.

One Thousand Dollars invested in Final at 60 cents per share has paid dividends as much as $2,968 per year and the shares could then have been sold for $44,600.

One Thousand Dollars invested in Sterling is returning $3,333 in dividends and the stock could be sold for $12,000.

Claremont, Monte Cristo and Palmer are also examples of exceptional returns to be obtained from sound oil investments.

The above are only a few illustrations that come readily to mind. There are many more. Investments in oil stocks have doubled and trebled in a short while as new wells were brought in and sensational advances in one oil stock or another are almost daily occurrences.

If you want your money to bring you an income, invest it where it has the chance. Savings banks seldom pay more than 4 per cent. Real Estate Mortgages not 5 or 6 per cent. Numerous stocks are paying 10 to 100 per cent. yearly and thousands of people are financially independent as a result of such investments.

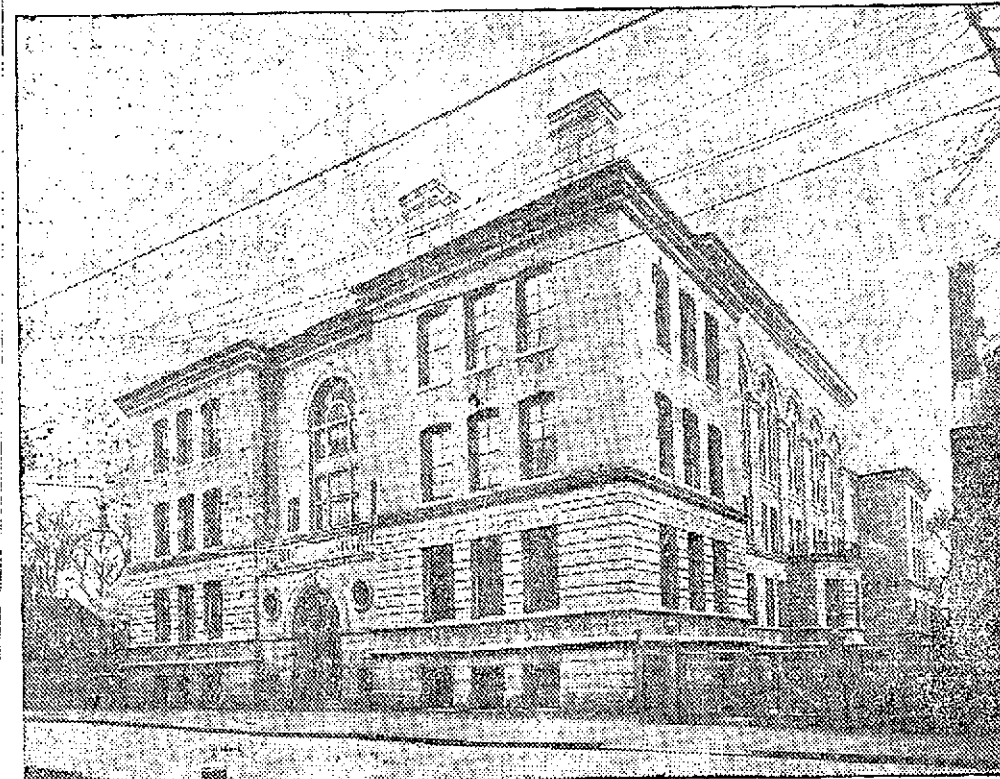

Concord Petroleum stock is now selling at $1.00. It should bring many times this price when the company's property is fully developed. Concord's 820 acres will accommodate more than 200 wells and it is only a matter of a few months to get larger earnings.

Arrangements have already been made for further drilling and for the purpose of putting down several wells without delay a block of treasury stock is offered for subscription.

If you have $50, $500 or $5,000 placed where the earnings are small invest it in Concord stock while obtainable at $1.00 a share. Don't wait till the price advances, subscribe now, or if you want further information write or call without delay.

School Session Started This Morning With a Large Attendance of Pupils

THE LOWELL HIGH SCHOOL

The public schools of Lowell opened today, and while large attendances were reported at all of the schools, definite numbers will not be obtainable for a day or two. Up to the noon hour 1230 registered at the High school and there were several from out of town, even Oklahoma being represented. The new superintendent of schools, Hugh J. Molloy, has not yet taken office, but will do so, in all probability, before the week is over. He called at city hall Saturday afternoon and had a talk with Mr. Whitcomb and later had a conference with the school committee. Mr. Whitcomb said this morning that he had received instructions from the committee to act in the capacity of superintendent until such time as Mr. Molloy reports for duty. Mr. Molloy, it is understood, tendered his resignation at the Normal school today.

Christopher J. Hagan, elected to the principalship of the Edson school at the last meeting of the committee, took office this morning, as did also Alice T. Lee, elected supervisor of primary schools, and Patrick J. Reynolds, master of the Riverside school.

CAKES AND SANDWICHES

That Find Favor With a Great Many People

Tomato Sandwiches—On some thinly cut slices of bread and butter sprinkle some finely chopped watercress and a little pepper and salt. Now peel and cut into very thin slices six or eight dried round tomatoes. They will peel easily if dipped into boiling water for a few seconds. Lay them on half the slices of bread and butter and moisten with a well made thick mayonnaise dressing into which a teaspoonful of very finely chopped tarragon has been mixed. Cover and cut into squares and place on ice until required.

Sweet Cream Sandwiches—Cream four ounces of butter, add gradually four ounces of sugar, four ounces of fine flour, four eggs (one by one), a squeeze of lemon juice or a tablespoonful of rosewater and, lastly, a teaspoonful of baking powder. When thoroughly mixed bake in shallow buttered tins. Leave until cold, then cut in finger strips. Take a quarter of a pint of cream and whip it up until perfectly thick, spread this on half the strips and cover with the others, sandwich fashion. Ice with chocolate or lemon icing.

Apricot Cream Cakes—Take two ounces each of butter, sugar and flour, one teaspoonful of apricot jam, half a beaten egg, one tablespoonful of cream. Slightly melt the butter, add the sugar, flour and jam and moisten with the egg and cream. When thoroughly mixed keep some quantities of it on a greased baking tin. When a light brown remove the cakes from the oven and roll them up while soft. Leave on a sieve till perfectly cold, then put into a tin to keep crisp till needed.

Cocconut Pyramids—Take four ounces of freshly grated cocconut, three ounces of sugar, the yolk of one egg, vanilla essence and rosewater flavoring. Mix the cocconut, sugar and yolk of egg, adding a little flavoring. Flour a baking sheet and with the fingers form the mixture into pyramids. Bake for a few minutes in a brisk oven, but take care they do not burn.

Montreux Sandwiches—Boil two eggs until hard and pound in a mortar with one ounce of butter, sufficient anchovy essence to make all a good pink color and a teaspoonful of very finely chopped parsley. When well pounded spread on slices of fresh bread and cover each with a slice of buttered bread. Stamp into fancy shapes and serve garnished with parsley.

TWO LOWELL MEN VISITING IN NEW YORK CITY

Henry Shaw! Suspected of Being "Gyp the Blood"

HENRY SHAW

All dressed up in their Sunday clothes, with their names in their hats and return tickets in their jeans, Pound-keeper Orville W. Peabody and Mr. Henry Shaw, the well known sausage manufacturer, left Lowell yesterday for a visit to New York. Before leaving Mr. Peabody called upon the city treasurer and drew six months' salary so that the pair were pretty well heeled financially. Business has been so brisk with Mr. Shaw that he has not had a vacation in several years and hence is an entire stranger to the big city, which perhaps accounts for the unpleasant experience which overtook the pair upon their arrival.

It seems that on the boat they attracted much attention and were watched quite closely although that fact did not disturb them, for it is only natural that the crowd should stare at two distinguished looking gentlemen. But just as they were leaving the boat a man stepped up to Mr. Shaw and placing his hand on the latter's shoulder said: "We'll take this taxi and proceed immediately to the district attorney's office."

"Who's your friend, Henry?" inquired Peabody.

But before Mr. Shaw could make reply another hand was laid on Peabody's shoulder and he, too, was invited to pay a visit to the district attorney.

"Cut your kidding," said Peabody. "Don't think for a moment, my friend, that we are a couple of boobies if we do look countrified. I'm a pound-keeper myself and I won't stand to be impounded by any New York guys, and that goes."

By this time Mr. Shaw had sufficiently recovered from his surprise to loosen his tongue and he said: "What's the meaning of all this? We don't want to see any district attorney. We have enough of other things to see without looking him up."

"Well, you've got to go and that settles it. You can't hand that stuff to me. We've been looking for you guys since the murder."

"Murder!" cried both men in amazement. "What murder?"

"O, come on, Gyp, get in the taxi and you too, Lefty," said the stranger, who turned out to be a detective.

"No, no, no," cried Mr. Shaw. "I'm plain Henry Shaw, a maker of honest sausages. Here's my card. If you don't believe me, telephones to Dan Leary, Lowell, Mass, the man who's always dying. Go ahead, telephone at his expense and hell tell you who I am, and that cuts there is. Awful Peabody, our worthy pound-keeper. Who do you think we are anyway."

"You're suspected of being 'Gyp' the Blood" and 'Lefty Louie,' but of course there may be some mistake," explained the detective apologetically, while just then a police officer came along and upon hearing the cause of disturbance burst into laughter and exclaimed:

"That ain't 'Gyp the Blood.' 'Gyp' is an old friend of mine and I know that that yoke is not 'Gyp.'"

Immediately they were released and as they departed Mr. Shaw paused and grabbing his friend by the arm said: "Say, Peab. What did that cop call me just then?"

"He said you were a yokel."

"What's a yokel?"

"A sausage, I guess," responded Peab.

"Say, Peab, let's go look up an old friend of mine."

"What's his name?"

"Buddy like."

"You're on."

While in New York Messrs. Shaw and Peabody intend to visit all the points of interest including the Singer building, Grant's tomb, the Eden Museum and several picture shows.

Big Aviation Meet
CHICAGO, Sept. 9.—The world's championship aviation meeting carrying with it the James Gordon Bennett trophy, donated in 1908, was to be settled in Chicago today. With the American defender built by a syndicate for the purpose of competing in this race withdrawn on the eve of the race, the big prize was practically conceded to France. The French team has three monoplane, each with a speed of more than 100 miles.

It was not announced what time the race would start. It might begin, according to the rules, anywhere between half an hour after sunrise and half an hour before sunset. The distance is 124.8 miles or about 30 laps around a 4.14 mile course.

The French aviators are Jules Verdures, Maurice Prevost and Andre Frey. The Americans who will participate are Deloid Thompson, Paul Peck and Howard Gill.

Milinery News
A millinery buyer just back from Europe has something to say about the Paris styles.

"Nothing really startling new is to be found," she says. "The hats are both big—very, very big—and small—tiny little affairs. So you have a choice. But there is something new in the order in which they are to come out. As soon as ever the light straw hats are abandoned we are to wear velvets—all kinds of velvet hats and plush and silks and satins. Usually, you know, the white felt comes in the transition period, but this year the wintry looking velvet will come early, and the felt will follow later on. That seems very strange to me."

"The hats will continue to fit well down over the head and hide the hair. They have to fit that way, in fact, because every one in Paris is wearing the hair very low in back and parted in front or at the side. The side parting is decidedly chic on the French girls. The big hats have rounded crowns and broad mushroom brims. They are trimmed with paradise and all sorts of ostrich feathers and the beautiful cross aigrets which we are not allowed to sell over here. We shall have the paradise plumes, though, in America. They are showing a few flowers over there, too, but they are made of flowers of satin, not natural looking ones, and they are fastened flat on the brim, over or under."

"Black is the principal color, and the black velvet hats are beautiful things. Then black and white are to be worn and that soft French blue and the dull purplish tones. Really, the colors are very artistic and look well in the pressed velvet and the soft plushes. It will be some time before any really new note is struck. In the meantime every milliner will be working out her own ideas, and you can't tell which will strike the popular fancy."

Dress for Business Girl
Smart and simple is this model of blue serge with trimmings of black and white striped taffeta. The neck has the new Robespierre collar, but the opening revealing the throat is not too pronounced. Long sleeves set into narrow armholes and an exceedingly plain waist go to make a good looking and at the same time suitable business costume.

The Surprise of National Golf Championship Tourney and the Two Finalists

CHICAGO, Sept. 9.—The national golf championship tourney which was played on the links of the Chicago Golf Club at Wheaton recently was one of the most exciting ever held. The biggest surprise of the tourney was the early defeat of Harold H. Hilton of the Royal Liverpool Golf Club, who just lost his advantage on the sixth green and was never in front again. Waldo, who is state champion of Connecticut, was later defeated by Paul Hunter of Middlebury, 5 up. Next to the surprise of Waldo, the playing of the finalists, "Chick" Evans, the local boy, and Jerome D. Travers of Montclair, N. J., were the features. The two cranks played a consistently good game all through.

St. Peter's Church

After having been discontinued during the summer months, the celebration of high mass was resumed at St. Peter's church yesterday with a very large congregation. Rev. John P. Burns was the officiating clergyman and Rev. Dr. Keeler gave a sermon on the gospel of the day, drawing several valuable lessons from his text. The choir rendered a fine musical program. At the offertory, Miss May D. White, rendered a beautiful "Ave Maria". Sunday school was resumed yesterday, and Dr. Keeler spoke on the necessity of parents and guardians seeing that those in their charge study the gospel of the day.

At 6:30 o'clock last evening the Holy Name society held its regular religious meeting in St. Paul's chapel, with a splendid attendance. Fr. Burns officiated and spoke briefly on the society and the necessity of work along the line of increasing the membership during the fall and winter season. Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament closed the service. Following the church services, a business meeting was held with President James W. Cook presiding. Routine business was transacted.

Sacred Heart Church

The members of the Holy Name society of the Sacred Heart church attended the 7:30 o'clock mass yesterday and received holy communion in a body. As it was the regular quarterly meeting of the society there was a very large attendance. The mass was celebrated by Rev. John P. Flynn, O. M. I., spiritual director of the society. A special musical program was given. Fr. Flynn was assisted in giving communion by Rev. T. Franklin Wood, O. M. I.

The business meeting of the society will be held in the school hall tomorrow evening, and as plans for the winter season will be made, a large attendance is expected. The boys' branch of the society will meet this evening.

The first rehearsal concert for the grand sacred concert to be given under the direction of John J. Kelly, organist and director, was held after the high mass yesterday.

At St. Michael's

At the 8 o'clock mass at St. Michael's church yesterday, the members of the Holy Name society received their regular quarterly communion. There was a very large attendance and Rev. Francis Mullin, spiritual director, congratulated the men on their large numbers. In the evening at 6:30 o'clock the first business meeting of the fall season was held, and President John Haviland presided. Plans for the winter season were arranged and, as usual, a log smoke talk will be held.

St. Mary's, Collinsville

At St. Mary's church, Collinsville, yesterday, Rev. Thomas Walsh, pastor, celebrated both mass and at each spoke on the gospel of the day. He also referred to the testimonial to be accorded one of the parish boys who is soon to enter the preparatory school of the St. Augustine order. He told of the expense incurred by sending the young man to the school and also of the many favors he had rendered the parish in the past, by serving in the capacity of an altar boy. He asked the parishioners to cooperate in assisting to give the boy a worthy send-off. The affair will be held in Harmony hall Saturday evening, and will include a concert and dancing.

St. Patrick's

Rev. John McLaughlin spoke at the masses at St. Patrick's church and spoke of the value of an education in the Catholic schools, and told of the excellent schools located in the parish. He said that during the summer season the schools were all remodeled and he invited the parishioners to call and inspect them.

Dangerous Blaze

What appeared to be a dangerous blaze broke out in the lecture room at the front of health studies in Broadway shortly before 7 o'clock this morning, and in response to an alarm from box 38 the fire department was soon on the scene and succeeded in extinguishing the blaze, but not until the flames had destroyed several suits of clothes and scorched the wall. The damage to the building was slight.

Overheated Store

An overheated kerosene stove in a tenement in Lowell place, on Market street, set fire to the partitions at noon today and as a result of the smoke pouring through the windows an alarm from box 12 was sent in. Upon the arrival of the fire department the blaze was soon extinguished. The damage was slight.

VOTE TO RETURN TO WORK

Loomfixers and Warp Twisters in
New Bedford Resume—Dart-
mouth Strike Called Off

NEW BEDFORD, Sept. 9.—The Loomfixers and Warp Twisters' unions both voted yesterday to return to work when the mills reopened today. The loomfixers also decided to call off their own strike against the Dartmouth mills. It was reported that the mill had made concessions to the fixers, and without much discussion the union voted to call the strike off.

On the matter of going to work in all the mills those who took the stand to stay out put it on the ground that if they returned to work it would be working for "scab" weavers, as the Weavers' union had not voted to call the strike off.

When the vote was taken these in favor of returning to work prevailed in the ratio of 10 to 1.

While the meeting of the loomfixers was going on in Labor Temple, in the large hall, the warp twisters were held a meeting in the small hall in the second story. The question was put to the meeting of whether to go to work or remain out, and the following motion was carried:

"That the warp twisters, in view of the fact of the secretary of the Spinners and Loomfixers' union ordering their men to work, thus forcing the textile council to act, are not in a position numerically to influence the strike, and that the members be instructed to go to work."

The textile council has asked Chas. G. Wood of the state board of arbitration to arrange a meeting between the manufacturers and the council, and if possible on the adoption of his plan for a closer relationship between the labor men and manufacturers. The wording of Mr. Wood's plan is as follows:

"A board of conciliation and arbitration shall be formed composed of four members of the Manufacturers' association, which shall meet twice annually, and at such other times as may be necessary, to discuss and adjust any grievances or differences existing in any branch of the industry in which the parties are involved."

The action of the textile council in breaking with the weavers and advising members of the unions outside the weavers to return to work has made a breach, it is claimed, which will prevent the Weavers' union from sending delegates again to the council.

THE GILBRIDE COMPANY

Behind the Lockhart Mill End Sale Is a Master Mind

Only the creative genius of a very original man could make possible the wonders of this sale as, seen by thousands of people the past two days. It was Napoleon who said: "Get the principle right and the rest is a mere matter of details." The principle behind the Lockhart Mill-End Sale is: "Co-operation in distribution of Merchandise." Prosperity depends upon distribution. To keep the vast currents of merchandise evenly flowing out from the manufacturers to the people that use it, is the backbone of prosperity. Mr. Lockhart seized upon this idea as the principle for this Great Mill-End Sale. Having the confidence of both the public and the manufacturers—a confidence that comes from thirty years of open-handed dealing between them—he has achieved the gigantic task of relieving the markets of accumulations of merchandise by fixing an outlet for manufacturers who become burdened at certain seasons of the year with excess stocks. These stocks representing millions of dollars worth of merchandise are distributed to the people through the medium of one department store in each large city of the United States at such prices as quickly clear it from the market. Is it any wonder that the Lockhart Mill-End Sale crowded our store to its fullest capacity Friday and Saturday?

Made Her Well Woman

Mrs. W. P. Valentine of Camden, N. J., says: "I suffered with pains in my back and sides, sick headaches, no appetite, was tired and nervous all the time. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made me a well woman and I wish other suffering women would avail themselves of this valuable remedy."

For nearly forty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ailments, and no sick woman does herself justice who will not try this famous medicine, made from roots and herbs. If you want help at home or in your business, try The Sun "Want" column.

Allowed C. M. A. C.

But One Hit

The Manhattan and C. M. A. C. teams met in a championship game at Spalding park Saturday afternoon, and the former won by the score of 5 to 2. The game was also for a purse of $100, and the fact that the teams represented two sections of the city brought out a good crowd and great enthusiasm.

Despite the fact that many misplays were recorded against each team, the game was a very interesting one, and was as a good pitching duel as was ever seen in this city. Peter Condon of the Manhattans pitched a remarkable game. Until the ninth inning not a hit was made off his delivery. In the final session, however, with one out, it. Marcotte scratched a hit to the infield. Condon's exhibition was replete with great headwork and control, and he fielded the position like a veteran. He had complete control of the situation at all times, and despite the fact that three were on bases at one time with none out and two on another time, without an out registered against his opponents, Condon tightened and forced the following men to close the inning without tallying. Prescott of the defeated team also pitched a fine game, allowing the hard hitting Manhattans but three hits. The latter's support was weak at critical stages, and in fact the scoring by both teams resulted from errors.

Clark on the receiving end of the Manhattan battery played a steady game and held up his pitcher at all times. His throwing was very good, despite the fact that five "stolen bases" were made by the C. M. A. C. team. W. Marcotte at third for the winners also figured in several clever plays, taking part in two double plays. He handled many hot ones and turned in a perfect day in the field.

The game went on without a score until the last of the third inning, when the Manhattans broke into the circle and sent three men over the pan. Cashman, first up, made the first hit of the game, a single over second, and he took third, when C. Marcotte dropped Prescott's throw on W. Marcotte's bunt. The Manhattan Marcotte then stole second. Condon hit through Gaudette and two runs were recorded on the score board. Clark went out on a fly to Noel. Buckley was retired on an infield grounder and Condon scored. White was hit and went to first and then stole second, but Grant closed the inning on a grounder to Prescott and going out at first.

In the fourth the C. M. A. C. team broke into the run column, sending two men over the pan. After Gaudette had been retired on a grounder to Cashman, Lebourdais hit to Cashman, who fumbled, and the runner was safe. He stole second and took third on a fly ball. Teliquet went out on a grounder to Condon, the latter holding Lebourdais on third. Pettler walked and stole, and when Ducharme dropped Condon's throw on B. Marcotte's grounder, two runs came in. The inning was over with C. Marcotte flying to Buckley.

In the fifth Condon performed the feat of retiring the side with the bases all occupied. Prescott walked and stole, second. Noel was hit by a pitched ball and took first. C. Marcotte hit to Condon, who threw to third to get Prescott, and while the runner was out the umpire couldn't see it and there were three on. Condon tickled up and fanned Gaudette, and on the third strike Clark shot the ball to Marcotte at third, who caught Prescott three feet from the bag. Lebourdais then went through a wand drill and the inning was over. The C. M. A. C. team never threatened to score after that.

In the last of the fifth the Manhattans scored two more runs. W. Marcotte was hit by a pitched ball and stole. Condon struck out, but as the catcher dropped the ball he ran to first, being retired, but Marcotte took third. Clark got an infield hit and stole second. Buckley grounded out and when White hit to B. Marcotte, who fumbled the ball, both men counted. White stole second and took third on a passed ball, but Grant closed the inning, fanning.

There was no more scoring, though many feature plays were pulled during the remainder of the game. The score:

Sensible Clothes Designed for the School Girl to Wear This Season

Some Pretty Costumes Turned Out That Will Appeal to All Girls

BELTED COATS FOR SCHOOL LOOK THE PART

Mothers these days are finding it a more sensible plan at the beginning of the school year to completely outfit their children, even when they are not going away from home to school.

This method not only saves continuous shopping, but the strenuous wear on a girl's wardrobe is averted. The shops even at this early day are well supplied with new frocks, coats and hats from which to choose the school outfit, and when the small daughter is to be considered mothers who make their children's clothes at home may rather smart and useful suggestions from some of these attractive models. For instance, the pretty school dress with the plaited coat for some weeks to come, if not all through the winter months.

Belted coats are very fashionable for small girls this fall, and there is something comfortable and informal about the new loose, belted school hair, a fabric particularly well adapted to the needs of the schoolroom. A bit of color may be introduced in the frills, which are applied in layers of plaids—a dark color over a lighter is a chic arrangement. The frock pictured is of navy blue silk over white silk. Frills, as you see, appear on the little maid's dresses as well as on her mother's now, and this model with its frill is most attractive as well as practical.

Possibly coats are of more interest at this season of the year than the dress, for the heavy linen and lingerie frocks may be worn over a pretty school dress with the plaited coat for some weeks to come, if not all through the winter months.

OLD ROSE AND SKUNK FUR

is conspicuously prominent in the reversible cloth coats of the season, which have a breezy dash of style that is all their own. The reversible illustrated is of dark blue, and the necessary "fur" from softness is given by the cuffs and collar lining of 3—Our lives and turning points in others' lives.

Had Christ not been at the well the woman's visit would have been as it had been many times before without any special significance, but because the Christ was there it was a time of opportunity, a time of crisis. Have you ever thought that your life might bring one of the turning points to another's life? Oh, if thou knewest, just faintly realized, the power your life may have as you meet the lives of others, I think that you would be very careful that when a life passed out from your influence it passed out to journey a little nearer to Christ.

Treat not the present with its weight of opportunity as something common or of little worth. You are dealing with eternal things which have an eternal influence on your soul. At your side is the Christ thirsting for your friendship and love, saying, give me to drink, 'Can you refuse him your love, your obedience? If thou knewest the gift of God and who it is that saith to thee, give me to drink; thou wouldest have asked of him, and he would have given thee living water.'

LOSS IS $60,000

Dickinson Home in Cold Spring Burned—The House was More Than 100 Years Old

GRANBY, Sept. 9.—The Elisha Dickinson homestead, located at Cold Spring, a suburb of this place, was destroyed by fire at 6:15 last evening, together with a large barn and several outbuildings.

The blaze started in a chimney. Part of the furniture in the house and many tools and farming implements were saved. The house, which was a two-story structure, and a farmhouse in this vicinity, was more than 100 years old and was occupied by George Dwyer and family and John Bryant. It had character only instead of as the living Christ, and so they miss many of the turning points in life and keep on in the old sinful way which leads to ruin. So then the reason why the

ANDOVER WOMAN IS MISSING

It is Thought She Jumped From Steamer—She Had Lost Many of Family

ANDOVER, Sept. 9.—Relatives and friends of Mrs. Ida W. Johnson, of Highland road, are making every effort to solve the mystery of her disappearance, and are hoping against hope that a suspicion that she threw herself from the steamship City of Bangor on the night of Aug. 26 will prove without foundation, but the investigation thus far makes it appear almost certain that she has been drowned.

Mrs. Johnson left Andover on the night of Sunday, Aug. 25, telling a neighbor, Mrs. George B. Frost, that she was going to Chelmsford to pass the night with her cousin, Mrs. Alfred P. Sawyer. Investigation shows that she did as she had planned and that she left Chelmsford the next day, ostensibly to return to Andover.

That she went to Boston instead of coming to Andover was revealed in a letter sent to Mrs. Frost on Aug. 26, in which she said that she had decided to take a trip to Gardiner, Me. That she purchased a ticket and procured a state room on the City of Bangor is known, for when the steamer returned to Boston on Aug. 29 it was found that one of the tickets that had been purchased for the previous trip down had not been collected.

A search of the steamer revealed the missing ticket in a stateroom found in the stateroom Mrs. Johnson had occupied. Her pocketbook, jewelry and other personal effects were in the stateroom. A note to Mrs. Frost was also found, in which Mrs. Johnson wrote in a despondent vein.

This note was the first intimation her friends or relatives received that her life was unhappy because of loneliness. Although she had lost by death her parents, husband, child and sister within a few years, and was greatly grieved thereby, her temperament was such that she maintained an outward appearance of cheerfulness that apparently deceived all who knew her as to her real state of mind, as indicated by the note found in her stateroom. The substance of the note was that her lonely life had become unbearable and that she was weary of the long separation.

Mrs. Johnson was about 55 years old. She came to Andover from New York about two years ago and opened a rooming house for students of Phillips Andover academy. She made friends readily with her neighbors and was a woman of education and refinement.

THE TRAMP PROBLEM

In British Isles in Fair Way Towards Solution

LONDON, September 9.—The tramp problem in the British Isles is in a fair way towards solution. The "way ticket" method of dealing with vagrancy is accomplishing a revolution. The latest reports on the working of the system indicate that within a very few years the ranks of the ragged mendicants on the highways of the United Kingdom will be reduced almost to vanishing point.

The object of the "way ticket" is to give a better chance to the unemployed who really want work, and to make the way of the professional tramp as hard as possible. The man who wants to work but is compelled to take to the road is taken into the poorhouse at night and released next morning instructed in the usual period of detention. When leaving he is given a ticket which entitles him to a certain allowance of bread and cheese along the road he intends to take. He is also put in touch with the local labor exchanges and everything possible is done for him if he shows a genuine desire to obtain work.

On the other hand, the habitual tramp obtains short shrift. After spending the night at the poorhouse he suffers the usual period of detention and sets the allotted task. Finally he is given the "way ticket," so that he has no excuse for begging. Very soon the poorhouse masters begin to look askance at the man who persists only presents the ticket, and his journey from village to village and from poorhouse to poorhouse in the counties where the system prevails is not made any too smooth. The tramps finally seek a county where they are given no credit, so these sanctuaries are beginning to adopt the system as self-defense.

The system only becomes successful when the householders co-operate. Circulars are issued instructing them that since all vagrants have access to the bread tickets, there is no excuse for giving food to beggars, and the tramps who neglect to provide themselves with the tickets are beginning to learn that the circulars have not fallen on barren soil.

Almost a War
The difficulties of the clergymen and social reforms of more enlightened countries in their efforts to compel the fair sex to put more cloth on their skirts pale into insignificance beside the troubles of the local governor of Ingham, British East Africa, who has almost caused a war by ordering the native maidens to attire themselves in European garb.

The order particularly incensed the native women should not appear in public without skirts under pain of some grave penalty not specified.

Never was an apparently innocent summary law received with such an outburst of rebellion. The Commercial council censured in a body and the Indian schoolboys who deal in the articles of attire favored by the natives threatened to shut up shop in protest. The native belles took even more drastic action by refusing to come near Ingham at all, with the result that the town was soon in danger of a famine in vegetables, poultry and other necessary food supplies. The women who lived in town prepared to leave.

The opposition became too hot for the governor, who withdrew the objectionable decree, and the belles of Ingham again went about in their scant native costumes.

Shakespeare League

The London Shakespeare league is busy with a plan for erecting in St. Leonard's church, Shoreditch, a tablet to the memory of the Elizabethan actors buried there. It is usual to think of Southwark Cathedral as the actors' church, for it is there that Edmund, the brother and fellow-actor of Shakespeare, lies buried. But the first theatres were near Shoreditch, and it there that the early actors lie at rest. All traces of the theatres have disappeared from the district; but, like many places in London, one of the unlovely streets perpetuates the memory of departed things by the name of Curtain street.

The original actors' church disappeared early in the eighteenth century, when, Donce designed the present structure to take its place. The actors' graves have disappeared, but their names remain on the parish register. Among them are those of Henry Somers, who delighted Henry VIII. and his court, and who is believed to have been the original Yorick, and James Burbage, who built the first English theatre, and his brother Richard, friend of Shakespeare. Still another name, recalling the Elizabethan thespians, is cut in gilt letters on the altar, that of Nicholas Wilkison, alias Tooley, an actor whom Shakespeare knew. He left thirty dollars to be distributed each year to the poor of the parish. The poor get the money to this day, so one actor at least is not forgotten.

To Regulate Clocks
The craze in London for regulation has reached the clocks. Hereafter, according to a decree of the corporation of the city, all public timepieces must be synchronized.

London's clocks generally have never been noted for timekeeping and the new regulation means that most of them will have to turn over a new leaf if they expect to synchronize with Greenwich time. Only three of the great clocks have proven themselves models of accuracy—those of St. Paul Cathedral, the Law Courts and Big Ben in Westminster Palace.

A lot of the street people that is the simplest thing in the world to lose or gain time. By walking a block the pedestrian could gain anything from thirty seconds to two hours or he might lose as much. Four minutes could be gained by crossing Fleet street from one newspaper to another, while a sporting paper on the same street had evidently started its racing season by being five minutes ahead of Greenwich time.

St. Margaret's, from which its ecclesiastical associations would be expected to be truthful was three minutes ahead of time, notwithstanding the reputation of its accurate Big Ben across the way.

Indeed, there seemed to be an conspiracy of inaccuracy among London clocks and on no street could more than two clocks be found to coincide.

REV. T. L. FROST

Begins His Second Year as Pastor of Worthen Street Church—He Preached on "The Tie That Binds"

Rev. Theodore L. Frost began his second year as pastor of the Worthen Street Baptist church, Sunday. In the morning he preached on "The Tie That Binds," and in the evening on "Turning Points." He took his text in the evening from John 4:10, and said, in part:

"The picture of the weary Christ beside Jacob's well is one of the most beautiful pictures in the gospel story. From this incident have come living waters to refresh many a tired, weary, hopeless soul. I have chosen but one verse from this account, and it contains or suggests our theme for this evening, 'Turning Points.' Turning points are those places in life where one decision or step will make vast changes in an individual's life for good or ill.

1.—The greatness of the commonplace. 2.—Turning points why unrecognized, thing that makes them as such. We bring our pitchers daily to the wells of life to draw water, feeling that this is simply an ordinary matter fraught with no important consequences for our lives. Oh, there are so many trifles in life! Did you say trifles? Why, friends, the use you make of these trifles, as you call them, determine your whole future. The commonplace is filled with greatness for in the commonplace there is the Christ.

It is not us, but because we know not that fact and the forces that surround us, we miss a thousand opportunities.

Early with souls that cringe and nod, We sinners climb and know it not.

2.—Turning points why unrecognized. To sit beside the Messiah and not to know him, how sad! Jesus speaks to the poor woman of living water and she thinks it some device to save her soul, to the well with her pitcher, how dull and slow of understanding is she! No more so than many of us.

"If thou knewest the gift of God," says the Lord to her. According to Christ, the woman knew not the gift of God, was not expecting anything from that quarter.

God has given to men a priceless gift in his beloved son, Jesus, and because they do not know and do not care to know the gift of God, but are depending on themselves for life and power, they come to the turning points and miss them. The woman at the well did not realize who spoke to her. Men, speaking to them, they think of him as a dead Christ, as some historical character only, instead of as the living Christ, and so they miss many of the turning points in life and keep on in the old sinful way which leads to ruin. So then the reason why the

MAINE AND VERMONT

The Vermont election was the first index to political sentiment from which to judge the probable results in November. The Maine election held today will be a still better criterion because Maine, formerly the most staunch republican state, has been in the democratic column for two years. The question now to be determined is whether it will remain so or swerve from its allegiance either towards Taft republicans or the Roosevelt party.

The liquor question still complicates the political situation in Maine and may to some extent affect the result, but otherwise, it is probable that the voters will sustain the democratic party. The republican primaries in June named a solid Roosevelt delegation to Chicago, so that the absence of a progressive ticket there will leave the fight almost squarely between the republicans and democrats. The democrats are in hopes of carrying the state by a good majority and thus giving still further proof of the great victory to be won in November. Both the straight republicans and the progressives are keeping quiet as to their choice for president and are trying to mine in electing Haines, the republican candidate for governor. After this election they will inaugurate the real contest between the Taft republicans and the progressives.

A plurality will elect presidential electors in Vermont in November, as that is not ruled by the Vermont constitution. The republican party gave 70 per cent. of its voting strength to the republican party four years ago, but in the recent election this was reduced to 45 per cent. The democratic party showed 27 per cent. of the vote four years ago. Last election it represented 25 per cent. There was a small loss proportionately and it shows how easy it will be to win democratic victories in this election. The democratic party is losing but slightly to Roosevelt, while the republican is largely handicapped. Roosevelt, however, cannot overcome the republican vote to the extent necessary to win a victory. If Maine does a little better than Vermont, the inference will be strong for a democratic victory in November.

SUPERINTENDENT OF SCHOOLS

Seldom has a public official been removed from office with greater eclat than attended the removal of Supt. Whitcomb when Mr. Hugh J. Molloy was elected to succeed him. His farewell address in which he thanked the teachers and the committee for courteous treatment, was very fine, very touching and very cordial, while on the other hand, the complimentary bouquets with which he was showered by the committee as he descended the toboggan, would lead one to suppose that between him and the board there existed only the most friendly relations, cemented by mutual admiration and esteem. If Mr. Whitcomb does not object, we do not see why anybody else should complain at his retirement. He has had a long term of service, over twenty-one years, we believe, and latterly it seemed that his authority was largely disregarded. When that state of affairs exists in a school system it is time to make a change. It is necessary to have a superintendent who will insist upon results and get them or tell the reason why. The people want their money's worth in education as well as in anything else and if they do not get it under the new superintendent, they will not wait for ten or twenty years to make a change.

It is true that Mr. Whitcomb was beloved by the children and highly esteemed by the teachers but, nevertheless, we believe the change will prove beneficial. The schools need improvement and under the new arrangement by which a supervisor of primary schools will assist the superintendent there is no reason why the primary school children should not reach the grammar grade much better prepared than formerly, and this impetus will count all through their course. The primary grades can accomplish much more than they do, without difficulty and without urging the children too much. The same is true of grammar and even high school classes. There should be a general improvement in results so that the schools of Lowell may be second to none in the state outside Boston.

UNWARRANTED PRECAUTION AGAINST TYPHOID

Vaccination against typhoid is now being used where physicians deem it necessary. This form of vaccination is yet in the experimental stage and that is why it should not be compulsory except in extreme cases to avert an epidemic. The case of a sailor from Mare Island, is causing much discussion inasmuch as he was sentenced to a year in prison for refusing to submit to such vaccination. The sailor, it seems, was acting within his rights in refusing to submit to the operation. There are many who hold that they should not be forced to submit to vaccination against smallpox which the law makes compulsory. It is not well to put new nostrums down the throats of people who do not want them. It is well known that many of the so-called specifics have utterly failed to do what their authors claimed for them. The Koch cure for consumption is a case in point and there are many others equally noteworthy, so that to make such an uncertain remedy as the typhoid vaccine compulsory under a heavy penalty, would be an unwarranted violation of individual right.

GENERAL STRIKE PROPOSED

It is useless for the I. W. W. to call a general strike as proposed by Hayward at Chicago, for the release of Ester and Giovannitti as their case will be reached during the present month. They have been detained in prison so long that when they get out they can go all over the country as "living martyrs." In the case of the I. W. W., their influence as leaders will be a thousand times greater when they are set free for we do not believe there is any evidence on which they can be convicted. The injustice of holding them so long in jail will then be pointed to as a conspiracy which will be charged to the mill men and classed with the dynamite conspiracy for which one man has already been convicted.

Attorney Pollard's challenge for a joint debate with Governor Rice is not a sign of strength. But he is right in condemning the course of Chairman Rice of the state committee in taking sides in the contest before the primaries. The chairman of the state committee should do nothing that would lessen his influence in behalf of any candidate nominated. If he stepped the state for Rice before the primaries, he could not consistently have Pollard at the latter's side in the contest. The state committee should keep neutral until after the primaries.

Colonel Benton, in his facial pose, affects a resemblance to Colonel Roosevelt; but he falls badly in assuming Mr. Roosevelt's broad grin. If Benton hopes to have any success in the Bull Moose party, he had better practice the Roosevelt grin and show a broad set of molars at the end of every talking period.

New Bedford, that has had a mill strike over two months, resumed work today. Both sides have had undoubtedly more than they wanted of idleness and the grinding system which the weavers wish to abolish is still in force.

The New York progressives have nominated a strong man for governor in Oscar S. Strauss. The convention went wild at the mention of his name in this connection and other candidates withdrew from the race.

The crowds rush to see Roosevelt, but there is no reason to believe that any large portion of the voters will support him or his party.

All the candidates for president favor the short ballot. Therefore it is presumed the ballot is bound to come.

STOMACH UPSET? SOUR? "CASCARETS"

Sluggish bowels causes gases and sourness

"That awful sourness, belching of acid and foul gases; that pain in the pit of the stomach, the heartburn, nervousness, nausea, bloating after eating, feeling of fullness, dizziness, headache, drowsiness, a disordered stomach, which cannot be regulated until you remove the cause. It isn't your stomach's fault. Your stomach is as good as any."

Try Cascarets; they immediately cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, indigestible and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the constipated waste matter and poison from the intestines and bowels. Then your stomach trouble is cured. You may work a ten-cent box from any drug store will keep your stomach sweet, liver and bowels regular for months. Don't forget the children; their little insides need a good, gentle cleansing, too.

TWO WERE KILLED

Three Others Missing and Are Probably Dead—They Were Beating Their Way on Freight

PORT PLAIN, N. Y., Sept. 9.—Two men were killed, three are missing and probably dead, and thousands of dollars damage was done as the result of the wreck of a fast freight train on the New York Central a mile east of Port Plain yesterday.

The five wreck victims were beating their way on the train, which was running at a rapid rate when a car truck broke. There was terrible and others in the rear followed, until 20 or more had crashed together and were strewn in all directions, tearing up rails and road bed for hundreds of feet.

The body of an unidentified man was taken from the wreck while Harry McDonald of 39 Prescott street, St. John, N. P., a printer, was so badly injured that he died later in a hospital at Amsterdam. Three men, identity unknown, who are missing, are thought to be under the debris of a number of cars which were crushed to landing.

Rev. Dr. Morrissey, a local priest, was one of the first at the wreck and administered the last rites to McDonald.

Ten Others Hurt As Aeroplane Swept Along the Ground—Propeller Blades Cut Their Way Through People

GRAY, Department of Haute-Savoie, France, Sept. 8.—An aeroplane got out of hand yesterday at an aviation meeting here and swept to the ground, crushing a score of spectators, four of whom were killed outright.

The propeller blades cut their way through the people as the machine sped over the ground. Many saved themselves by dropping outstretched to the ground. One of the victims was an aged woman.

Ten persons were injured, their legs and arms being badly mangled. The pilot of the aeroplane was not hurt. When he climbed out of his machine and saw the disaster which it had caused, he fled wildly across the field. No blame, however, is attached to him.

NEW MEXICAN CONGRESS

Will be Called to Order on September 16

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 8.—The new Mexican congress convenes Sept. 16, and after that date it will be difficult for friends of the administration to find excuses for failure to carry out at least a few of the promises made by President Madero when he was chief of the rebel army that overthrew the Diaz government.

The chamber of deputies will have on its roll 245 representatives, 150 of whom were elected by the constitutional progressive party, which gave Madero the presidency. The minority of 95 is by no means a solid block. It includes representatives of three political parties, the Catholic, Evolutionist and Independent.

The progressives also claim to have the balance of power in the senate. The upper house in Mexico is not the dominant body, however, and undisturbed control in the chamber amounts practically to control of congress.

Out of the weird medley of revolutionary propaganda which has reached the capital from the camps of Zapata in the north, from those of Orozco in the south and from the trails of rebellious peons in districts so remote that the names of Zapata and Orozco are rarely heard, the most dominant note is that in which all unite—"Madero must resign."

For the most part the rebels have vague reasons for uniting in this demand and all resort to the charge that the president has failed to fulfill the promises made in his "Plan of San Luis Potosi."

The charge is not without basis, but the very natural defense of the president is and has been that he has had neither time nor the legal machinery necessary for the carrying out of the promised reforms. Not for one day since his inauguration has his country been free from rebels who loudly demanded "fulfillment of his promises," and not yet has the executive had a congress on which he could depend for the support of the measures he has promised.

The congress Madero inherited was a part of the old administration. The new congress is supposed to be in sympathy with his ideas. Under the old congress, however, the administration was able to have enacted the most cherished reform—the constitutional amendment providing for the non-re-election of the president. The electoral law was also altered, but the elections of the past summer betrayed so many defects in the new law that it will come up again for revision this session. One of the defects most glaring, it was found, was that it permitted a man to be a candidate for an indefinite number of offices at the same time. For instance, Francisco de la Barra, former provisional president, who was made a member of the senate on the Catholic ticket, was a candidate in four different states.

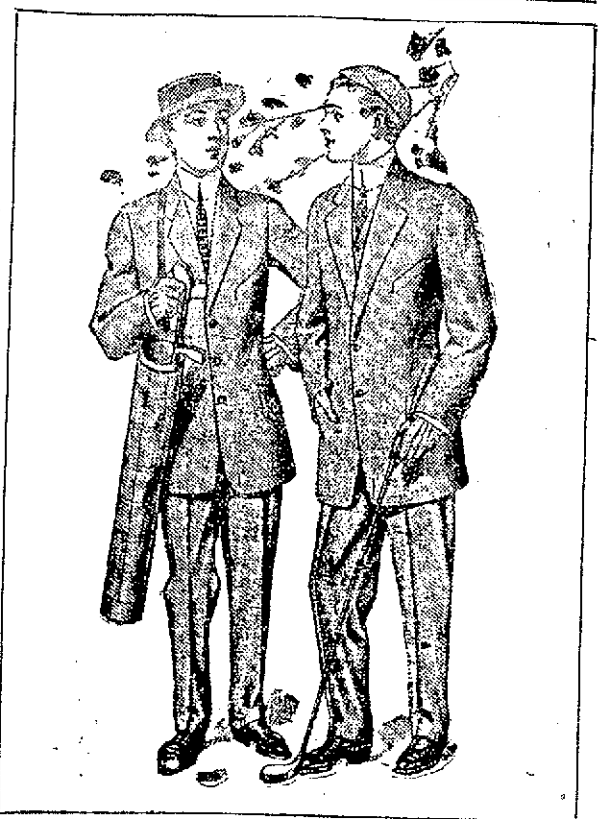

Among these measures known to be ready for preparation at the session beginning in September are an employment liability act, the abolition of the jefes politicos, an anti-porcupe law and a measure for establishing courts of jurisprudence for the settlement of land titles in cases where the records are missing. In many hundreds of cases the records were burned during the past revolution and in these revolutions yet existing.

Massacre of Soldiers

Another dramatic chapter was added to the story of the massacre of soldiers and citizens at Tlaximlan by Zapalistas by General Brandon, an American newspaper man working on El Diario of this city. Two of the passengers on the train assaulted by the Zapalistas were H. L. Strauss and Ignacio Herreras, Mexican correspondents.

dents. Another was Miguel Rivera, a newspaper photographer. All were slain, and their bodies, with those of the other victims, burned. Brandon visited the long heap of human ashes a few days later, and there, according to a story written in the first person, which he sent to his paper, "swore to forsake his attitude of neutrality and to avenge the death of his companions."

The remainder of the story was brought here by the officer in command of the detachment with which Brandon was riding. From this officer Brandon asked a rifle and cartridges.

The next day the little force of soldiers had a brush with the rebels. Brandon was firing from the ground near the officer. "There's one for Strauss," said Brandon to the officer, pointing to a fallen rebel. A few minutes later another rebel crumpled down, and Brandon, turning to the officer, added: "That was for Miguel." Again a rebel pitched forward, and Brandon, sliding over to the officer, handed him the rifle and cartridge belt with the remark that he had done his part in making the score even.

CHILD LOST LIFE

Little One Played With Matches in Her Home in the West End in Boston and Was Fatally Burned

BOSTON, Sept. 9.—While playing with matches in the doorway of 53 Grove Square, West End, at 2:30 yesterday afternoon, Ida Gordon, 2½ years old, was so badly burned that she died at the Massachusetts General hospital at 5. The Gordon family live on the third floor.

The child got possession of a box of matches and went down to the steps leading from the street to the first floor. Several other children of her own age were with her. She lighted a number of the matches and finally the edge of her dress took fire.

The sight of the fire frightened the other children away. Mrs. John Duff, who lives directly across the square on the street floor, heard Ida scream and saw the child enveloped in flames. She called to her husband, who seized a coverlet from a cot, and running over wrapped it about the screaming child.

Mrs. Gordon, the mother of the child, who was in her flat above, also heard the screams and ran down stairs. She tore the coverlet off her daughter and seized her in her arms. The clothing had been almost burned from Ida's body.

Mrs. Annie Williams, who lives on the first floor, was attracted by the commotion. When she discovered what the cause was she ran into her kitchen and brought out a basin of water, which she poured over the child's body.

The frantic mother ran down Grove street through the gathering crowd in the direction of the Massachusetts General hospital. A clock down the hill she met her husband, Morris Gordon, who was on his way home. He seized Ida out of her mother's arms and ran as fast as he could to the hospital.

There the physicians discovered that the child was burned terribly all over her body.

Some one sounded box 32, but there was no need of the alarm.

Chimney Fire

An alarm from box 43 was sounded at about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon for a chimney fire in one of the Flynn buildings in Elm street. The fire was extinguished before any material damage was done.

The alarm from box 16 shortly after 5 o'clock Saturday night was for a slight blaze in one of the houses in Chapel street owned by Mr. Flynn.

MOTORCYCLIST HURLED TO DEATH LABOR DAY SERVICES WERE HELD

He Struck Spectators in His Path—Twelve Persons Killed or Dying

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 8.—Eddie Hasha of Waco, Tex., holder of several world's records for motorcycle racing, plunged over the rail of the course at the new Vailsburg motorhome into a crowd, late yesterday afternoon, causing the death of six persons, including himself, while six are dying and 12 are badly injured.

The only two of the six dead who had been positively identified up to a late hour last night were Hasha and Johnny Albright, a Denver motorcyclist who was riding third in the race. The four other dead were boys and young men among the spectators.

Picked Up at Wife's Feet

Five thousand spectators were witnessing the finish of a four mile free-for-all race when the daring Texan rider, doing 42 miles an hour, took his fatal plunge.

He was riding high on the bank of the track when the wheel of his heavy machine served and struck the upper rail. He was pitched head first 50 feet into the air.

He must have been instantly killed in the collision. His body was shattered in a broken bones when it was picked up almost at the foot of his wife, who was among men and boys in the bleachers.

He was riding high on the bank of the track when the wheel of his heavy machine served and struck the upper rail. He was pitched head first 50 feet into the air.

He was picked up for dead, but he lived in an unconscious state for more than two hours after removal to a hospital. He finally succumbed to hemorrhage of the lungs.

The spectators looked were mainly the men and boys who were leaning over the rail, yelling encouragement to the riders, when Hasha came tearing into their midst. Some of the spectators were hurled high into the air and landed in the laps of those seated behind.

A panic among the spectators followed the tragedy.

The stadium where the accident occurred is in Vailsburg, a suburb of this city, where bicycle and motorcycle racing have been popular sports this year. The season has been marked by a number of accidents both here and at Brighton Beach, N. Y., but never in the history of local racing has such a death list been recorded as was yesterday.

Tried to Pass Seymour

Six riders started in the free-for-all, which was the last event on the program. It was a handicap event, with Hasha and Ray Seymour of Los Angeles, an old rival for premier honors of the motorhome, each starting from scratch.

Ray Peck, another Los Angeles rider, at the quarter-mile mark, and Albright of Denver, and Frank King and John King of Newark, were each given two full laps handicap. The track is a quarter-mile and circular.

At the crack of the pistol, Hasha leaped into the lead of Seymour. After six rounds of the course, during which his rival had outrun him, the smoke, the pair swung up and in the other lap Seymour passed Hasha with a terrific burst of speed. By varying margins Seymour kept the lead until the last few laps.

The racing was lined four deep with the men and boys among the spectators to overtake his rival. Just at the commencement of the last lap the champion crunched low on his handle bars in an attempt to overtake Seymour. The leader ran high on the track, leaving a narrow race for Hasha to pass, but he tried it. It was then that he struck the rail. Whether he really lost control of the machine or merely misjudged the narrowness of his run to the rail, was a matter of dispute among the witnesses.

Boy Killed by Sprcket

The sprcket of Hasha's wheel was loosened by the collision and went sailing into the crowd. Witnesses say that it literally tore off the skull of a little boy in knickerbockers, who had been one of the most excited enthusiasts at the race.

In addition to those injured on Hasha was hurled against them, many persons fell and were trampled under the feet of the thousands of spectators who were on the platform and on the ball.

Mrs. Hasha was sitting with Seymour's wife, chatting and laughing over the closeness of the race their husbands were running. Both women became hysterical after the tragedy and were removed to the city hospital for treatment.

Seymour kept control of his machine, notwithstanding the excitement of the accident, and was riding to safety when Hasha's wrecked machine came skidding down the track. The bank is of a 55-degree angle all the way around.

Albright was unconscious when picked up. At first it was thought he was dead, later that he was only suffering a few broken bones, but he died in the German hospital at 9 o'clock.

Mr. Charles E. Anderson

Spoke at the Central
M. E. Church

CHARLES E. ANDERSON

At the Labor day service of the Central Methodist Episcopal church Sunday morning, Charles E. Anderson, secretary of the Lowell Trades and Labor council, spoke on "Trade Unions and What They Stand For." He spoke in part as follows:

"On the invitation of your pastor, Rev. N. W. Whitaker, I am to talk to you this morning upon labor unions, their aims and objectives, their needs and their problems and failures, a subject far too broad for me to attempt to cover except in a summary fashion. And furthermore I am not a platform speaker and even the little I can say will be said with difficulty.

Labor unions, as you all know, are bodies of men banded together to secure better wages and working conditions, not only for themselves, but for all working men, and also to make themselves more skilled and efficient workers. As for their necessity, they were created by modern industrial conditions which require regularity and uniformity in the production of goods, and the capitalist or producer sells his goods, in the open market and to the highest bidder. The manufacturer sells and buys in quantity and wishes to get prompt delivery and to give prompt shipment. Labor, too, organized collectively to secure its best advantage and to furnish skilled, efficient and trustworthy workmen.

An Important Question

"Does it pay to belong to the organized labor movement? This is the question that has to be answered by every labor leader, business agent, and trade union official whose duty it is to build up the trade union movement and augment its forces from the ranks of the unorganized workers. Human nature is in the direction of the better standard of living and more substantial return for the expenditure of mental and physical power in the direction and operation of modern industry. With the forces that control and determine the cost of living, the organized labor movement is in a position to resist any attempt upon their margins of profit, and the unorganized workers must become the victims of a condition of life that precipitates human deterioration and national decadence, and having accepted the inevitable truth that the increased cost of living proceeds and is responsible for the demands for higher wages, the only immediate relief is through the organization of the workers on the industrial field to negotiate for, or strike for, better conditions, or on the political field, to legislate themselves into better conditions.

"The necessities of life are not sold to the unorganized workers at one price and to the organized workers at another price. All must exist under the same conditions, but if through organization the workers of one section receive a higher wage than those in the unorganized section, the standards of living cannot be the same for both sections. When it comes to the standard of the unorganized worker that his standard of living is being determined by forces antagonistic to the interests of the working class and that his wages are also being fixed by the same forces, he will see more clearly the necessity of belonging to the organized labor movement and co-operating with his fellow workers to improve his standard of living by securing a higher price for his labor power. If the employer (always anxious to maintain the highest margin of profit in the sale of the necessities of life) blames the organized labor movement for increases in wages, the unorganized workers will begin to realize that despite the false charge against organized labor by the employers it is to their interest to share in the higher wages to meet the increased cost of living.

Doesn't Claim Perfection

"Organized labor makes no claim that it is perfect. It is a human institution, and as such is liable to make mistakes. They may make mistakes in choosing representatives and mistakes in urging demands. We have found most of what we know by making mistakes, and having to suffer for them. If any member or official makes a mistake, the organization is criticised. Why should they be any more than if a member of a church makes a mistake? "Organized labor has increased wages, has shortened the workday of millions of men and women. It has changed the toilers from servile creatures to independent and self-respecting citizens. It is responsible for all the laws enacted in the interest of working men, women and children. It has fought for years and is still fighting for the emancipation of child labor. It is fighting for a decent wage and decent treatment for millions of women forced to work for a livelihood."

and Mrs. Elias De La Haya in Wright street, Mr. De La Haya was a member of this class and the party enjoyed a very pleasant evening.

The political activities here will open on Wednesday evening with a grand democratic rally which will be held under the direction of the democratic committee of the town. John E. McMahon, chairman of the latter will preside at this gathering and the speakers of the evening are Mr. Humphrey O'Sullivan, candidate for congress on the democratic ticket, John J. Hogan, Esq., Hon. James P. Casey and Daniel J. Donohue, Esq.

It was yesterday announced in St. John's church that the Sunday school sessions were to be resumed in the afternoon, the teachers being as previously, the nuns of the Notre Dame academy. Rev. Edmund T. Schaeffler celebrated two masses at the church in the morning.

The St. John's Ladies' Auxiliary society held a meeting after the second mass and considered proposals in regard to the continuance of their fall and winter drives. A large amount of raising business was transacted.

Miss Abbie Butterfield, while performing her household duties yesterday morning, was suddenly overcome by the fumes of escaping gas from a jet accidentally left open. Neighbors, detecting a strong odor of gas about the place, determined to investigate and located the source in Miss Butterfield's room where she was found unconscious. Aid was called and upon medical treatment, Miss Butterfield quickly recovered.

VOTE TO RETURN TO WORK

Loomfixers and Warp Twisters in
New Bedford Resume—Dart-
mouth Strike Called Off

NEW BEDFORD, Sept. 9.—The Loomfixers' and Warp Twisters' unions both voted yesterday to return to work when the mills reopened today. The loomfixers also decided to call off their own strike against the Dartmouth mills. At the meeting of the loomfixers yesterday afternoon, the first question taken up was the matter of the Dartmouth mill strike. It was reported that the mill had made concessions to the fixers, and without much discussion the union voted to call the strike off.

On the matter of going to work in all the mills those who took the stand to stay out put it on the ground that if they returned to work it would be working for "scab" weavers, as the Weavers' union had not voted to call the strike off.

When the vote was taken those in favor of returning to work prevailed in the ratio of 10 to 1.

While the meeting of the loomfixers was going on in Labor Temple, in the large hall, the warp twisters were holding a meeting in the small hall in the second story. The question was put to the meeting of whether to go to work or remain out, and the following motion was carried:

"That the warp twisters, in view of the fact of the secretary of the Spinners' and Loomfixers' unions ordering their men to work, thus forcing the textile council to act, are not in a position numerically to influence the strike and that the members be instructed to go to work."

The textile council has asked Chas. G. Wood of the state board of arbitration to arrange a meeting between the manufacturers and the council to agree if possible on the adoption of his plan for a closer relationship between the labor men and manufacturers. The wording of Mr. Wood's plan is as follows:

"A board of conciliation and arbitration shall be formed comprised of four members of the textile councils, four members of the Manufacturers' association, which shall meet twice annually, and at such other times as may be necessary, to discuss and adjust any grievances or differences existing in any branch of the industry in which the parties are involved."

The action of the textile council in breaking with the weavers and advising members of the unions outside the weavers to return to work has made a breach, it is claimed, which will prevent the weavers' union from sending delegates again to the council.

Behind the Lockhart Mill End Sale Is a Master Mind

Only the creative genius of a very original man could make possible the wonders of this sale as seen by thousands of people the past two days. It was Napoleon who said: "Get the principle right and the rest is a mere matter of details." The principle behind the Lockhart Mill-End Sale is: "Co-operation in distribution of Merchandise." Prosperity depends upon distribution. To keep the vast currents of merchandise evenly flowing out from the manufacturers to the people that use it, is the backbone of prosperity. Mr. Lockhart seized upon this idea as the principle for this Great Mill-End Sale. Having the confidence of both the public and the manufacturers—a confidence that comes from thirty years of open-handed dealing between them—he has achieved the gigantic task of relieving the markets of accumulations of merchandise by fixing an outlet for manufacturers who become burdened at certain seasons of the year with excess stocks. These stocks representing millions of dollars worth of merchandise are distributed to the people through the medium of one department store in each large city of the United States at such prices as quickly clear it from the market. Is it any wonder that the Lockhart Mill-End Sale crowded our store to its fullest capacity Friday and Saturday?

Made Her Well Woman

Mrs. W. P. Valentine of Camden, N. J., says: "I suffered with pains in my back and side, sick headaches, no appetite, was tired and nervous all the time. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made me a well woman and I wish other suffering women would avail themselves of this valuable remedy."

For nearly forty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ailments, and no sick woman does herself justice who will not try this famous medicine, made from roots and herbs.

MANHATTANS DEFEATED C.M.A.C.

Score 5 to 2--Condon

Allowed C. M. A. C.

But One Hit

The Manhattan and C. M. A. C. teams met in a championship game at Spalding park Saturday afternoon, and the former won by the score of 5 to 2. The game was also for a purse of $100, and the fact that the teams represented two sections of the city brought out a good crowd and great enthusiasm.

Despite the fact that many misplays were recorded against each team, the game was a very interesting one, and was as good a pitching duel as was ever seen in this city. Peter Condon of the Manhattans pitched a remarkable game. Until the ninth inning not a hit was made off his delivery. In the final session, however, with one out, B. Marcotte scratched a hit to the infield. Condon's exhibition was replete with great headwork and control, and he fielded the position like a veteran. He had complete control of the situation at all times, and despite the fact that three were on bases at one time with none out and two on another time, without an out registered against his opponents, Condon tightened and forced the following men to close the innings without hitting. Prescott of the defeated team also pitched a fine game, allowing the hard hitting Manhattans but three hits. The latter's support was weak at critical stages, and in fact the scoring by both teams resulted from errors.

Clark on the receiving end of the Manhattan battery played a steady game and held up his pitcher at all times. His throwing was very good, despite the fact that five "stolen bases" were made by the C. M. A. C. team. W. Marcotte at third for the winners also figured in several clever plays, taking part in two double plays. He handled many hot ones and turned in a perfect day in the field.

The game went on without a score until the last of the third inning, when the Manhattans broke into the circle and sent three men over the pan. Cashman, first up, made the first hit of the game, a single over second, and the third, when C. Marcotte dropped Prescott's throw on W. Marcotte's bunt. The Manhattan Marquette then stole second. Condon hit through Gaudette and two runs were recorded on the score board. Clark went out on a fly to Noel. Buckley was retired on an infield grounder and Condon scored. White was hit and went to first and then stole second, but Grant closed the inning on a grounder to Prescott and going out at first.

In the fourth the C. M. A. C. team broke into the run column, sending two men over the pan. After Gaudette had been retired on a grounder to Cashman, Lebourdais hit to Cashman, who fumbled, and the runner was safe. He stole second and took third on a passed ball. Pelouquin went out on a grounder to Condon, the latter holding Lebourdais on third. Pelletier walked and stole, and when Buchanan dropped Condon's throw on B. Marcotte's grounder, two runs came in. The inning was over with C. Marcotte flying to Buckley.

In the fifth Condon performed the stunt of retiring the side with the bases all occupied. Prescott walked and stole second. Noel was hit by a pitched ball and took first. C. Marcotte hit to Condon, who threw to third to get Prescott, and while the runner was out the umpire couldn't see it and there were three on. Condon tightened up and fanned Gaudette, and on the third strike Clark shot the ball to Marcotte at third, who caught Prescott three feet from the base. Lebourdais then went through a wound drill and the inning was over. The C. M. A. C. team never threatened to score after that.

In the last of the fifth the Manhattans scored two more runs. W. Marcotte was hit by a pitched ball and stole. Condon struck out, but as the catcher dropped the ball he ran to first, being retired, but Marcotte took third. Clark got an infield hit and stole second. Buckley grounded out and while White hit to B. Marcotte, who fumbled the ball, both men counted. White stole second and took third on a passed ball, but Grant closed the inning, fanning.

There was no more scoring, though many feature plays were pulled during the remainder of the game. The score:

AMATEUR BASEBALL

The Tiger A. C. of North River split a double header with the Cubs of North Chelmsford Saturday at Mystic park. The Cubs took the first game 5 to 1, but dropped the second 8 to 7.

The Rangers and North Ends played a 16-inning tie Saturday, the score being 5 to 5.

The Manhattans broke into the circle and sent three men over the pan. Cashman, first up, made the first hit of the game, a single over second, and the third, when C. Marcotte dropped Prescott's throw on W. Marcotte's bunt.

The Manhattan Marquette then stole second. Condon hit through Gaudette and two runs were recorded on the score board. Clark went out on a fly to Noel. Buckley was retired on an infield grounder and Condon scored.

Co. K Won Butler Cup

Company K of the Sixth regiment won the Butler cup at the shoot held at the rifle range in Dracut Saturday and Color Sergeant Colby captured the Parker cup.

Companies C and K are fighting it out for the high honors and it is a nip and tuck race. Saturday K scored 534 while C only reached four points over the 500 mark.

Color Sergeant Colby scored 71 in the contest for the Parker cup. The scores follow:

The N. E. league season of 1912 has passed into history and Lawrence is the winner of the pennant. Lowell came in second and Worcester third.

The contest for fourth was very exciting and Lynn beat out Brockton by a narrow margin, and the Brockton team which showed such a dash during the early stages of the race, was forced to take first place in the second division. New Bedford came in sixth, Haverhill seventh, and Fall River in eighth.

The race proved a most interesting one, and during the season, many attendance records were smashed. Especially so when Lawrence and Lowell became so closely bunched and the fact that these two teams did draw so well supplied the owners of both teams with a come back.

At the opening of the season, the league experienced a great deal of inclement weather, and on Patriots day with all the seats in the stand and all teams were obliged to postpone the games scheduled. Other disagreeable weather was experienced and the teams started the season under a big expense.

The managers did not waver, but promised to give good baseball especially in Lowell, the owners being confident that the fans would appreciate the fact and attend the games, when the good weather came. This the fans did and certainly showed their appreciation for the efforts of the management in providing good baseball for the Spaulding city.

While Lowell started out to play well, they soon dropped and when the pitching staff was weak, many games were lost that should have been recorded as victories. The pitching department gave Manager Gray continued trouble and he realized this and signed up any man who he thought would strengthen the team. After Young and Warwick were let go, Lowell had but three pitchers, Wolfgang, the old reliable, Maybourn and Zeiser. While Willie did good work at the start he was not in last year's form and owing to the fact that all three were obliged to do a great deal of work they got rather stale, and found the going hard. Later more men were signed up, and while a few lasted a while, they were finally let go and it was not until "Big Jed" joined the ranks that the pitching department was completed. When the latter got going the rest that the other three were able to get helped the team wonderfully and Maybourn especially started to pitch wonderful ball.

The manager was obliged to strengthen up a few other places, but these he attended to with remarkable success. He traded most successfully, showing great judgment in sizing up players and through his keen work secured Zeiser, De Groff, McGamwell and Clemens, and he picked up Doe, and all showed superiority over their predecessors, remembering that Barrows, whose place Clemens took was not implicated in the trading, for he was sold outright last year.

Well, after all the weak places were attended to, real baseball was played, and though the team was way down Manager Gray predicted that they would be up on top by August. When this prediction was made, the manager's dope looked very blinky, but as the records of the league show, he made good his promise. While the team was not on the top, it was so close that all the fans were willing to admit that he came across with the goods.

After Lowell struck second place, it remained there practically all the time. Once we jumped into the lead, but were bumped out, and after receiving the bank Lawrence held on. The winning of the pennant by Lawrence marks the first time that the city has been blessed with a pennant combination since it entered the ranks of the league.

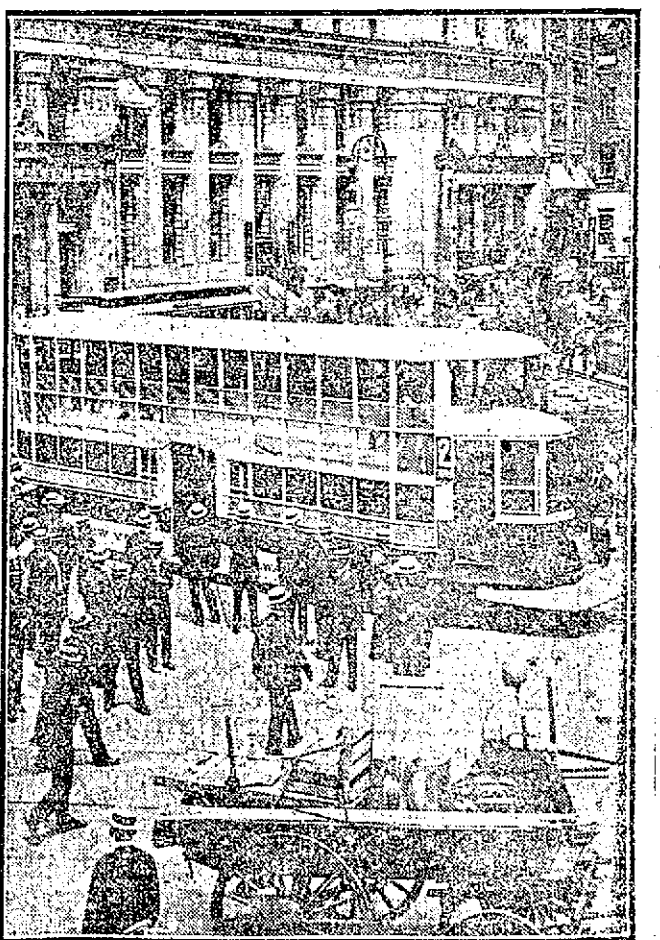

Manager Pieper, the former Harvard coach, has certainly made good, and during his two years as manager has raised the team from a well-nigh hopeless contender to the first rung of the ladder. His success is beneficial to the league, and especially so to Lowell.

At the close of the season Lowell was a great drawing card, and the team was considered to be the best in the league, pitchers excluded. All will admit that the Lawrence staff, particularly Keat and Hoff were superior to any, and to these men the Lowell fans can attribute the Grays' defeat and Lawrence's victory.

Our players were very popular here and they gave us excellent baseball. We greatly appreciate their efforts and unite with the fans in wishing them good luck until we meet again.

Financially, the league was not successful, as four of the teams made good while the other quarter went in the hole. The four that added to the proceeds are Lawrence, Lowell, Worcester and Brockton.

Now We'll Ride In the Double Decker Street Car

NEW YORK'S LATEST STREET CAR

Europe, upon whose methods of railway transportation Americans are prone to look with a degree of condescension, long ago adopted an improvement in street car construction which is just being introduced into the United States. This is the double decker street car, the first example of which (in America) is to be found in New York. The new American model is superior to any in use in Europe.

The car is not only double decker, but steeper—moreover, it has a center side entrance.

The ordinary long open car used in New York city accommodates sixty persons seated, the short open car, the long closed car thirty-six, the short or is said to be an improvement and a time saver for the company and the passengers. As the main floor is so near the ground, the distance to the second deck is only about twenty inches higher than the main floor of many of the ordinary street cars. The stairways to the second deck are arranged in such a form that they are easy to climb and are fully enclosed against inclement weather.

The seats on the main floor are arranged longitudinally. The center part of the ceiling is much higher than the ceiling directly over the seats of the main floor. The seats on the second deck are built longitudinally back to back in the center part and are directly over the heightened ceiling of the main floor, thus providing for a saving of space. Both compartments are of the semi-convertible design for summer use and can be enclosed in a short time through the use of a specially designed window sash.

The upper compartment, it is expected, can be operated as an open air and smoking section for at least seven months of the year. Protection against the elements is provided in the summer by curtains. When the car is inclosed in the winter specially invented exhausts will be used to insure ample supply of fresh air.

Among the novel features worked out in the construction of the car are the methods for providing for the necessary braking power required by the increased passenger load and improvements in fender design. Special provision has been made for a brake that is operated under loads varying from one passenger to 171 passengers.

One reason why double decked cars have not hitherto been used in New York is that the branches of the elevated railroad gridiron the city and many sections of the elevated structure are too low to permit the new style of cars to pass under them. The 15d which the railroad company has ordered, however, will be put on those surface lines with whose operation the elevated road does not interfere.

ANDOVER WOMAN IS MISSING

It is Thought She Jumped From Steamer—She Had Lost Many of Family

ANDOVER, Sept. 9.—Relatives and friends of Mrs. Ida W. Johnson of Highland road are making every effort to solve the mystery of her disappearance, and are hoping against hope that a suspicion that she threw herself from the steamship City of Bangor on the night of Aug. 25 will prove without foundation, but the investigation thus far makes it appear almost certain that she has been drowned.

Mrs. Johnson left Andover on the night of Sunday, Aug. 25, telling a neighbor, Mrs. George B. Frost, that she was going to Chelmsford to be the night with her cousin, Mrs. Alfred P. Sawyer. Investigation shows that she did as she had planned and that she left Chelmsford the next day, ostensibly to return to Andover.

That she went to Boston instead of coming to Andover was revealed in a letter sent to Mrs. Frost on Aug. 25, in which she said that she had decided to take a trip to Gardiner, Me. That she purchased a ticket and secured a state room on the City of Bangor is known, for when the steamer returned to Boston on Aug. 28, it was found that one of the tickets had been purchased for the previous trip

THE TRAMP PROBLEM

In British Isles in Fair Way Towards Solution

LONDON, September 3.—The tramp problem in the British Isles is in a fair way towards solution. The "way ticket" method of dealing with vagrancy is accomplishing a revolution. The latest reports on the working of the system indicate that within a very few years the ranks of the ragged mendicants on the highways of the United Kingdom will be reduced almost to vanishing point.

The object of the "way ticket" is to give a better chance to the unemployed who really want work, and to make the way of the professional tramp as hard as possible. The man who wants to work but is compelled to take to the road is taken into the workhouse at night and released next morning instead of suffering the usual period of detention. When leaving he is given a ticket which entitles him to a certain allowance of bread and cheese along the road he intends to take. He is also put in touch with the local labor exchanges and everything possible is done for him if he shows a genuine desire to obtain work.

On the other hand, the habitual tramp obtains short shrift. After spending the night at the workhouse he suffers the usual period of detention and then the ticket is given. Finally he has no excuse for begging. Very soon the workhouse masters begin to look askance at the man who persistently presents the ticket, and his journey from village to village and from parish to parish is not made any too smooth. The tramp finally seeks a county where this method does not prevail, so these sanctuaries are beginning to adopt the system as self-defense.

The system only becomes successful when the householders co-operate. Circulars are issued instructing them that, since all vagrants have access to the bread tickets, there is no excuse for giving food to beggars, and the tramps who neglect to provide themselves with the ticket are liable to be taken to court. The circulars have not fallen on barren soil.

Almost a War
The difficulties of the clergyman and social reforms of more enlightened countries in their efforts to compel the fair sex to put more cloth into their skirts pale into insignificance beside the troubles of the local governor of Inhamban, British East Africa, who has almost caused a war by ordering the native women to attire themselves in European garb.

The order particularly insisted that the native women should not appear in public without skirts under pain of some grave penalty not specified.

Never was an apparently innocent summary law received with such an outburst of rebellion. The Commercial council resigned in a body and the Indian storekeepers who deal in the articles of attire favored by the native ladies threatened to shut up shop in protest. The native belles took even more drastic action by refusing to come near Inhamban at all, with the result that the town was soon in danger of a famine in vegetables, eggs, poultry and other necessary food supplies. The women who lived in town prepared to leave.

The opposition became too hot for the governor, who withdrew the obnoxious decree, and the belles of Inhamban again go about in their scant native costumes.

down had not been collected. A search of the steamer revealed the missing ticket in a cache found in the stateroom Mrs. Johnson had occupied. Her pocketbook, jewels and other personal effects were in the stateroom. A note to Mrs. Frost was also found, in which Mrs. Johnson wrote in a despondent vein.

This note was the first intimation her friends or relatives received that her life was unhappy because of loneliness. Although she had lost by death her parents, husband, child and sister within a few years, and was greatly isolated there, her temperamental nature was such that she maintained an outward appearance of cheerfulness that apparently deceived all who knew her as to her real state of mind, as indicated by the note found in her stateroom. The substance of the note was that her life had been a long and weary one, and that she was weary of the long separation.

Mrs. Johnson was about 50 years old. She came to Andover from New York about two years ago and opened a rooming house for students of Phillips Andover academy. She made friends readily with her neighbors and was a woman of education and refinement.

busy with a plan for erecting in St. Leonard's church, Shorefield, a tablet to the memory of the Elizabethan actors buried there. It is usual to think of Southwark Cathedral as the actors' church, for it is there that Edmund, the brother and fellow-actor of Shakespeare, lies buried. But the first theatres were near Shorefield, and it is there that the early actors lie at rest. All traces of the theatre have disappeared from the district, but like many places in London, one of the liveliest streets perpetuates the memory of departed things by the name of Curtain Street.

The original actors' church disappeared early in the eighteenth century when Dance designed the present structure to take its place. The actors' graves have disappeared, but their names remain on the parish register. Among them are those of William Kempe, who dedicated Henry VIII, and his cousin and who is believed to have been the original York, and James Burbage, who built the first English theatre, and his brother Richard, friend of Shakespeare. Still another name, recalling the Elizabethan actors, is that of William Shakespeare, who is buried in the church.

To Regulate Clocks
The craze in London for regulation has reached the clocks. Hereafter, according to a clause of the corporation of the city, all public timepieces must be synchronized.

London's clocks generally have never been noted for timekeeping and the new regulation means that most of them will have to turn over a new leaf. The expectation is that the Greenwich time, which is the basis of the great clocks have proven themselves models of accuracy—those of St. Paul Cathedral, the Law Courts and Big Ben in Westminster Palace.

A tour of the streets proves that it is the simplest thing in the world to lose or gain time. By walking a block the pedestrian could gain anything from thirty seconds to two hours or he might lose as much. Four minutes could be gained by crossing Fleet street from one newspaper to another, while a sporting paper on the same street has evidently started its racing season by being five minutes ahead of Greenwich time.

St. Margaret's, from which its ecclesiastical associations would be expected to be truthful was three minutes ahead of time, notwithstanding the renowned clocks of accurate Big Ben across the way.

Great Shakeup
The big shakeup in the conductors and motormen of the Bay State street railway company, as was announced in Saturday's Sun went into effect today, and there were a great many changes. During the summer months many of the older men prefer the suburban cars and now that the winter schedule is in effect those longest in the service decided to come into town and take some of the short cars.

The older men have it on the youngsters for it more than one man enters a bid on a job the one oldest in point of service gets the preference. In many cases several bids were registered on one job, but the unsuccessful ones had to bump some young men. On practically all the cars this morning, new men were at the brakes, and pulling the bell rope, but as usual everything went along without a hitch.

There were no beach excursions today.

Now that the season for the trips to the beach and baseball are over a few words of praise are due one man in Merrimack square, who has worked unflinchingly all summer, sending cars to the beaches, parks and ball grounds in a manner that called out words of praise from all who had occasion to use the cars. This man is Walter Hickey, the starter, who has been on the jump all summer. He has had a very efficient corps of assistants, and they, too, should be complimented.

Badly Injured
Eugene Martin of 40 Hudson street had his right leg injured while at work at the Lowell Bleachery at 8:30 o'clock this morning. The ambulance was called and the injured man was taken to the Lowell hospital.

The Football Season
PRINCETON, N. J., Sept. 9.—Today marked the beginning of the football season at Princeton. The varsity players, having been ordered to University field for the first practice of the new year. From now on there will be plenty of hard work for the candidates every day.

Logan Cunningham, who has played on the varsity in 1910, and who was backfield coach last fall, will have charge of the Princeton team this year. The management has not announced as yet the full quota of coaches.

round us, we miss a thousand opportunities. Daily with souls that cringe and plot. We sin and climb and know it not.

REV. T. L. FROST
Begins His Second Year as Pastor of Worthen Street Church—He Preached on "The Tie That Binds"

Rev. Theodore L. Frost began his second year as pastor of the Worthen Street Baptist church, Sunday, in the morning he preached on "The Tie That Binds," and in the evening on "Turning Points." He took his text in the evening from John 1:10, and said, in part:

"The picture of the weary Christ beside Jacob's well is one of the most beautiful pictures in the gospel story. From this incident have come living waters to refresh many a tired, weary, hopeless soul. I have chosen but one verse from this account, and it contains or suggests our theme for this evening, 'Turning Points.' Turning points are those places in life where one decision or step will make vast changes in an individual's life for good or ill.

1.—The greatness of the commonplace. 2.—Turning points why unrecognized, thing that marks them as such. We bring our pitchers daily to the wells of life to draw water, feeling that this is simply an ordinary matter fraught with no important consequences for our lives. Oh, there are so many trifles in life! Did you say trifles? Why, indeed, the use you make of these trifles, as you call them, determine your whole future. The commonplace is filled with greatness for in the commonplace there is the Christ.

God is near us, but because we know not that fact and the forces that surround us, we miss a thousand opportunities.

Daily with souls that cringe and plot.

We sin and climb and know it not.

2.—Turning points why unrecognized.

To sit beside the Messiah and not to know him, how sad! Jesus speaks to the poor woman of living water and she thinks it some device to save her coming to the well with her pitcher. How dull and slow of understanding is that! No more so than many of us.

"If thou knewest the gift of God," says the Lord to her. According to Christ, the woman knew not the gift of God, she was not expecting anything from that quarter.

God has given to men a priceless gift in his beloved son, Jesus, and because they do not know and do not care to know the gift of God, but are depending on themselves for life and power, they come to the turning points and miss them. The woman at the well did not realize who spoke to her. Men today do not realize the Christ that is speaking to them. They think of him as a dead Christ, as some historical character only, instead of as the living Christ, and so they miss many of the turning points in life and keep on in the old sinful way which leads to ruin. So then the reason why the turning points are unrecognized or turned to no good account is because of ignorance or a lack of desire for good.

3.—Our lives and turning points in others' lives.

Had Christ not been at the well the woman's visit would have been as it had been many times before without any special significance, but because the Christ was there it was a time of opportunity, a time of crisis. Have you ever thought that your life might bring one of the turning points to another's life? Oh, if thou knewest, just faintly realized, the power your life may have as you meet the lives of others, I think that you would be very careful that when a life passed out from your influence it passed out to journey a little nearer to Christ.

Treat not the present with its weight of opportunity as something common or of little worth. You are dealing with eternal things which have an eternal influence on your soul. At your side is the Christ thirsting for your friendship and love, saying, give me to drink. Can you refuse him your love, your obedience? "If thou knewest the gift of God and who it is that saith to thee, give me to drink, thou wouldst have asked of him, and he would have given thee living water."

You'll be sorry if you miss the Fellowship, Thursday, at Canobie Lake.

A bolt of lightning struck the mast, splitting it down some distance and making the whole ship tremble. The chief engineer was stunned and thrown five feet and the mate was rendered unconscious. Neither was seriously hurt, although the mate was laid up in bed for two days.

MAINE AND VERMONT

The Vermont election was the first index to political sentiment from which to judge the probable results in November. The Maine election held today will be a still better criterion because Maine, formerly the most staunch republican state, has been in the democratic column for two years. The question now to be determined is whether it will remain so or swerve from its allegiance either towards Taft republicans or the Roosevelt party.

The liquor question still complicates the political situation in Maine and may to some extent affect the result, but otherwise, it is probable that the voters will sustain the democratic party. The republican primaries in June named a solid Roosevelt delegation to Chicago, so that the absence of a progressive ticket there will have the fight almost squarely between the republicans and democrats. The democrats are in hopes of carrying the state by a good majority and thus giving still further proof of the great victory to be won in November. Both the straight republicans and the progressives are keeping quiet as to their choice for president and are trying to unite in electing Haines, the republican candidate for governor. After this election they will inaugurate the real contest between the Taft republicans and the progressives.

A plurality will elect presidential electors in Vermont in November as that is not ruled by the Vermont constitution. The republican party gave 70 per cent. of its voting strength to the republican party four years ago, but in the recent election this was reduced to 45 per cent. The democratic party showed 27 per cent. of the vote four years ago. Last election it represented 25 per cent. That was a small loss proportionately and it shows how easy it will be to win democratic victories in this election. The democratic party is losing but slightly to Roosevelt, while the republican is largely handicapped. Roosevelt, however, cannot overcome the republican vote to the extent necessary to win a victory. If Maine does a little better than Vermont, the inference will be strong for a democratic victory in November.

SUPERINTENDENT OF SCHOOLS

Seldom has a public official been removed from office with greater éclat than attended the removal of Supt. Whitcomb when Mr. Hugh J. Molloy was elected to succeed him. His farewell address in which he thanked the teachers and the committee for courteous treatment, was very fine, very touching and very cordial, while on the other hand, the complimentary bouquets with which he was showered by the committee as he descended the toboggan, would lead one to suppose that between him and the board there existed only the most friendly relations, cemented by mutual admiration and esteem. If Mr. Whitcomb does not object, we do not see why anybody else should complain of his retirement. He has had a long term of service, over twenty-one years, we believe, and lately it seemed that his authority was largely disregarded. When that state of affairs exists in a school system it is time to make a change. It is necessary to have a superintendent who will insist upon results and get them or tell the reason why. The people want their money's worth in education as well as in anything else and if they do not get it under the new superintendent, they will not wait for ten or twenty years to make a change.

It is true that Mr. Whitcomb was beloved by the children and highly esteemed by the teachers, but nevertheless, we believe the change will prove beneficial. The schools need improvement and under the new arrangements by which a supervisor of primary schools will assist the superintendent there is no reason why the primary school children should not reach the grammar grades much better prepared than formerly, and this impetus will count all through their course. The primary grades can accomplish much more than they do, without difficulty and without urging the children too much. The same is true of grammar and even high school classes. There should be a general improvement in results so that the schools of Lowell may be second to none in the state outside Boston.

UNWARRANTED PRECAUTION AGAINST TYPHOID

Vaccination against typhoid is now being used where physicians deem it necessary. This form of vaccination is yet in the experimental stage and that is why it should not be compulsory except in extreme cases to avert an epidemic. The case of a sailor from Mare Island, is causing much discussion inasmuch as he was sentenced to a year in prison for refusing to submit to such vaccination. The sailor, it seems, was acting within his rights in refusing to submit to the operation. There are many who hold that they should not be forced to submit to vaccination against smallpox which the law makes compulsory. It is not well to put new nostrums down the throats of people who do not want them. It is well known that many of the so-called specific diseases have lately failed to do what their authors claimed for them. The Koch cure for consumption is a case in point and there are many others equally noteworthy, so that to make such an unceremonious remedy as the typhoid vaccine compulsory under a heavy penalty, would be an unwarranted violation of individual right.

GENERAL STRIKE PROPOSED

It is useless for the I. W. W. to call a general strike as proposed by Haywood at Chicago, for the release of Elmer and Giovanni, as their case will be reached during the present month. They have been detained in prison so long that when they get out they can go all over the country as "living martyrs" to the cause of the I. W. W. Their influence as leaders will be a thousand times greater when they are set free for we do not believe there is any evidence on which they can be convicted. The injustice of holding them so long in jail will then be pointed to as a conspiracy which will be charged to the jail men and classed with the dynamite conspiracy for which one man has already been convicted.

Attorney Peabody's challenge for a joint debate with Governor Foss is not a sign of strength. But he is right in condemning the course of Chairman Riley of the state committee in taking sides in the contest before the primaries. The chairman of the state committee should do nothing that would lessen his influence in behalf of any candidate nominated. If he stumped the state for Foss before the primaries, he could not consistently back Peabody if the latter should be nominated. The state committee should keep neutral until after the primaries.

Colonel Benton in his facial poses affects a resemblance to Colonel Roosevelt; but he fails badly in assuming Mr. Roosevelt's broad grin. If Benton hopes to have any success in the Bull Moose party, he had better practice the Roosevelt grin and show a broad set of molars at the end of every talking period.

New Bedford that has had a mill strike over two months, resumed work today. Both sides have had undoubtedly more than they wanted of bitterness and the grinding system which the weavers wish to abolish is still in force.

The New York progressives have nominated a strong man for governor in Oscar S. Strauss. The convention went wild at the mention of his name in this connection and other candidates withdrew from the race.

The crowds rush to see Roosevelt, but there is no reason to believe that any large portion of the voters will support him or his party.

All the candidates for president favor the short ballot. Therefore it is presumed the ballot is bound to come.

That awful sourness, belching of gas, and bad odors that pain in the pit of the stomach, the heartburn, nervousness, nausea, bloating, after eating, feeling of fullness, dizziness, and sick headache, means a disordered stomach, which cannot be regulated until you remove the cause. It isn't your stomach's fault. Your stomach is as good as any.

Try Cascarets; they immediately cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the constipated waste matter and poison from the intestines and bowels. Then your stomach trouble is ended. A Cascaret tonight will strengthen you out by morning—a 10-cent box from any drug store will keep your stomach sweet, firm and bowels regular for months. Don't forget the children; their little insides need a good, gentle cleansing, too.

NEW MEXICAN CONGRESS

Will be Called to Order
on September 16

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 9.—The new Mexican congress convenes Sept. 16, and after that date it will be difficult for friends of the administration to find excuses for failure to carry out at least a few of the promises made by President Madero when he was chief of the rebel army that overthrew the Diaz government.

The chamber of deputies will have on its roll 243 representatives, 150 of whom were elected by the constitutional progressive party, which gave Madero the presidency. The minority of 93 is by no means a solid block. It includes representatives of three political parties, the Catholic, Evolutionist and Independent.

The progressives also claim to have the balance of power in the senate. The upper house in Mexico is not the dominant body, however, and undisputed control in the chamber amounts practically to control of congress.

Out of the welter of revolutionary propaganda which has reached the capital from the camps of Zapata in the south and from the trails of rebellious peons in districts so remote that the names of Zapata and Orozco are rarely heard, the most dominant note is that in which all unite—"Madero must resign."

For the most part the rebels have vague reasons for uniting in this demand and all resort to the charge that the president has failed to fulfill the promises made in his "Plan of San Luis Potosi."

The charge is not without basis, but the very nature of the president's promises and the fact that he has had neither time nor the legal machinery necessary for the carrying out of the promised reforms. Not for one day since his inauguration has his loudly demanded "fulfillment of his promises," and not yet has the executive had a congress on which he could depend for the support of the measures he has promised.

The congress Madero inherited was a part of the old administration. The new congress is supposed to be in sympathy with his ideas. Under the old congress, however, the administration was able to have enacted the most cherished reform—the constitutional amendment providing for the non-re-election of the president. The electoral law was also altered, but the elections of the past summer betrayed so many defects in the new law that it will come up again for revision in this session. One of the defects most glaring, it was found, was that it permitted a man to be a candidate for an indefinite number of years at the same time. For instance, Francisco de la Barra, former provisional president, who was made a member of the senate on the Catholic ticket, was a candidate in four different states.

Among those measures known to be ready for presentation at the session beginning in September are an employment liability act, the abolition of the jefes politicos, an anti-pronage law and a measure for establishing courts of jurisdiction for the settlement of land titles in cases where the records are missing. In many hundreds of cases the records were burned during the past revolution and in those revolutions yet existing.

Massacre of Soldiers

Another dramatic chapter was added to the story of the massacre of soldiers and citizens at Teuam by Zapata's by General Brander, an American newspaper man working on El Diario of this city. Two of the passengers on the train assaulted by the Zapatistas were H. J. Strauss and Ignacio Herreras, Mexican correspon-

Two men were killed, three are missing and probably dead and thousands of dollars' damage was done as the result of the wreck of a fast freight train on the New York Central a mile east of Port Plain yesterday.

The five wreck victims were beating their way on the train, which was running at a rapid rate when a car truck broke. The car was derailed and others in the rear followed, until 20 or more had crashed together and were strewn in all directions, tearing up rails and road bed for hundreds of feet.

The body of an unidentified man was taken from the wreck, while Harry McDonald of 33 Prescott street, St. Johns, N. E., a printer, was so badly injured that he died later in a hospital at Amsterdam. Three men, identity unknown, who are missing, are thought to be under the debris of a number of cars which were smashed to kindling.

Rev. Fr. Morrissey, a local priest, was one of the first at the wreck, and administered the last rites to McDonald.

GRAY, Department of Haute-Saone, France, Sept. 9.—An aeroplane got out of hand yesterday at an aviation meeting here and swept to the ground, crushing a score of spectators, four of whom were killed outright.

The propeller blades cut their way through the people as the machine came over the ground. Many saved themselves by dropping outstretched to the ground. One of the victims was an aged woman.

Ten persons were injured, their legs and arms being badly mutilated. The pilot of the aeroplane was not hurt. When he climbed out of his machine and saw the disaster which it had caused, he fled wildly across the field. No blame, however, is attached to him.

dents. Another was Miguel Rivera, a newspaper photographer. All were slain, and their bodies, with those of the other victims, burned. Brandon visited the long heap of human ashes a few days later, and there, according to a store written in the first person, which he sent to his paper, "swore to forsake his attitude of neutrality and to avenge the death of his companions."

The remainder of the story was brought here by the officer in command of the detachment with which Brandon was riding. From this officer Brandon asked a rifle and cartridges.

The next day the little force of federalists had a brush with the rebels. Brandon was firing from the ground near the officer. "There's one for Strauss," said Brandon to the officer, pointing to a fallen rebel. A few minutes later another rebel crumpled down, and Brandon, turning to the officer, added: "That was for Irwin."

Now one more for Miguel! Again a rebel pitched forward, and Brandon sliding over to the officer, handed him the rifle and cartridge belt with the remark that he had done his part in making the score even.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

Opera House

One of the best musical shows that has ever appeared in Lowell, "Alma," a gem from the brain of Paul Hervey, was heard on Saturday evening at the Opera House by an audience not much larger than the proverbial corporal's guard. Possibly it may have been the pleasant weather outdoors or busy Saturday night itself which caused local theatregoers to "pass up" this splendid show, but whatever the reason those who missed it missed an entertaining production as will possibly be seen here this season.

"Alma" is one of those shows in which catchy music and witty lines, with an accompanying simple plot, combine to please the ear and tickle the heart of every person in the audience. Of course, the one song in the show is "Alma, Where Do You Live?" Time and again during the three acts this tuneful air was sung, and the more often it was given the more hearty was the applause. The audience seemed never to have had enough of it. In fact, the show itself appeared to be built for the song.

According to the plot, a country youth, Pierre Le Peuch, is to become the heir to his uncle's estate, valued at four million francs, if he abstains from "proposing" to any sweetheart—then non-existent—until 9 o'clock on the morning of Sept. 7, 1912. The reading of the will, at which Pierre is present, takes place at 9 o'clock on the morning of Sept. 7, 1912. But should Pierre disregard this provision the four million francs will be bequeathed to his cousins, the Martin family. Naturally, the Martins plan to divert the fortune into their own hands by inveigling Pierre into "napping the question" before the fateful hour. To accomplish this they suggest to a handsome young woman, Alma, that, by hook or by crook, she wheedle the momentous proposal out of him and that for this assistance she will be paid fifty thousand francs. But Alma is conscientious. Or, again, she is mighty cute. Anyway, she follows hearty co-operation with the Martins, and, without any great exertion, bewitches Pierre into making the proposal—at 9.01 a. m. Consequently, the four million francs go to Pierre, and Pierre goes to Alma.

Of the many comical situations in the show that in which Alma begins to captivate Pierre is the most laughable. The unsophisticated Pierre is at first rather indifferent to Alma's charms but gradually, these commence to make their impression and before realizing it the lad "falls" for the blandishments of the mischievous Parisienne. The contrast in their dispositions—he a superlatively handsome young man, and she a comely and handsome girl—is nothing less than ludicrous. The scene, too, at the reading of the will is mirth provoking. Theobald Martin, a rich, spoiled and unscrupulous man, is the wealthy uncle of Pierre. He is a man of great wealth and is the owner of a large estate in France. He is a man of great wealth and is the owner of a large estate in France. He is a man of great wealth and is the owner of a large estate in France.

other mirth producing scene between Pierre and Alma is that in which Pierre, following the directions contained in his little book, "How Young Men Should Behave on Coming to Paris," engages in a tele-tele with his fair companion. By considering the respective temperaments of the young persons, the laughable and awkward advances of Pierre and the comical retorts of Alma may really be said to be amusing throughout the entire three acts. In fact, situations are always cropping up that compel laughter.

Miss May Latham, "Alma," is gifted with a magnificent voice and has acquired the cause and gracefulness which distinguishes her as the star of the company. Her singing of "Alma, Where Do You Live?" was superb, while her laugh-provoking portrayal of the chic Parisienne was so comically done that she had the house in continuous roars. Not the least of her attractions, either, were the beautiful gowns that so effectively set off her symmetrical figure.

Jesse Williamson, as the young rustic, Pierre Le Peuch, possesses a splendid baritone voice. This he uses with brilliant effect in his rendition of "Alma" and "Girls," and with Miss Latham in "Childhood Days," "Kiss Me, My Love," and "The Land of Beautiful Dreams." All these songs are set to particularly catchy airs, so it needed nothing but the vocal abilities of Miss Latham and Mr. Williamson to make them what the audience—melodies of delight.

Mr. Williamson's impersonation, too, of a green and timid country youth who finds himself all by his lonesome in Paris, is clever. Of course, these characteristics were exaggerated for the amusement of the audience, still their ludicrous portrayal was artistically done.

As a gay old bird, even if a hen-pecked one, Theobald Martin, impersonated by John Saunders, is a scream. Old Theobald's one weakness is his admiration for a regular force and a well-turned ankle. In this indulging in his love of the beautiful, however, the old gentleman finds himself time and again in hot water—either his tennismatrimonial spouse is giving him a piece of her tongue, or Alma is leaving him half out of his head, or rival admirers are threatening to shoot him. Altogether, Theobald is the funny man in the show and Mr. Saunders' lifelike representation of such a type is worthy of the highest praise.

The cast of players and musical numbers follow:

PRIMROSE AND DOCKSTADER
One of the interesting facts of the amusement season is the fact that on Tuesday, Sept. 10, the world's greatest minstrel team, Primrose and Dockstader, with a band of 25 pieces and a half-hundred other clever clowns of the minstrel world will play here at the Opera House.

In the past season every form of opera, comic or grand, has had its big reunions and all-star casts, and at last the evolution has set this season on foot. Primrose and Dockstader, in support of Primrose and Dockstader, will be the Four Harmonists, the Six Musical Browns, Raymond Wylie, the male struzzini and many other feature acts from the leading vaudeville circuits.

It is said that this attraction will pay the largest salary list of any minstrel show ever known in this city, and scenically will outstrip any former efforts, in stupendous and extravagant mounting.

ALICE LLOYD
All advance reports promise a delightful in the fourth comedy with music, "Little Miss Fix-it," with the famous English songstress, Alice Lloyd as the star, which is to come on Wednesday, Sept. 11, matinee and night, to the Opera House.

This is another of the now famous Verba and Leecher productions which seem to have set apart this firm as the most effective of light opera producers. It is they who have sent "The Spring Maid" and "The Rose Maid" to opera houses. "Little Miss Fix-it" is a play of a kind that has been successful for many years. The company is a large one, whose members have been much praised.

THE PINK LADY
The advance sale for the special engagement of Klaw & Erlanger's musical comedy, "The Pink Lady," which is at the Opera House for two nights, beginning Friday, Sept. 13, will open at the box office of that playhouse tomorrow, and all of the Sunday school children and that will come up, Manager Ward has made arrangements to receive mail orders accompanied by check or money order and fill them in the order of their receipt. There will be an augmented force in the box office to handle the advance sale so that this detail of the rush can also be taken care of to the satisfaction of the public.

edy sensation of the decade and its coming to the Opera House at this time will introduce here the production of this wonderful success in every detail that made it so popular during the years' run of the piece in New York city.

"OFFICER 666" is the busiest policeman in the world—and the funniest. The famous sleuth who answers the roll call when these numbers are pronounced, will be here when Cohen & Harris present "Officer 666" at the Opera House, Thursday, Sept. 12. This farce is by long odds the best entertainment that has been offered metropolitan audiences in many seasons. A fact proved by its run of a year in New York and nearly that length of time in Chicago.

The Playhouse
Hallett Bosworth has been engaged as a member of the drama players for the coming season, and in this young man Mr. Weston has undoubtedly secured one who will win merited recognition from press and public alike here. For the season is many weeks old, Mr. Bosworth is indeed a clever actor, who has the happy faculty of making the characters which he presents of a most convincing nature. Especially convincing is he in the delicate creations such as "Judge Prentiss" in "The Withering Hour," "Col. Preston" in "Alabama," and "Lord Robert" in "The Christian." Mr. Bosworth has been with many of Frohman's attractions, as well as some of the best stock companies in America, notably the Crescent Stock company of Brooklyn, N. Y., and the Princess Stock company of Toronto. He is a young man of splendid physique and natural charm and should be a great success while at the Playhouse (formerly Hathaway theatre). Mr. Weston has endeavored and succeeded in securing the services of all high class actors and actresses whose standard of efficiency is well known in all of the theatrical centres of the east. Lowell people no doubt will appreciate the efforts of the management in getting together such a cast.

NORTH CHELMSFORD

Rev. Fr. Schofield was the celebrant at the masses in St. John's church yesterday morning at the usual hours. Fr. Schofield preached a forceful sermon to the parents on their duties to their children.

The Sunday school opened with a very large attendance at 2 o'clock in the afternoon in charge of the Sisters of Notre Dame. Classes were arranged and the lessons assigned to the children. The usual corps of teachers was in attendance. Rev. Fr. Schofield urged the children to work for the prizes he would give at the year's close and has offered a special prize to the boy and girl of the Sunday school who will attain the highest rank in their catechism at the examination.

Remove Scratches From Marble
To remove slight scratches from marble try rubbing the surface with a flat piece of pumice stone. Both marble and stone should be wet.
